RECOMMEND GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

COMMITTEE ON INSURANCE LAW, AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION'S REPORTS.

ACCUMULATIONS OF DEFERRED DIVIDENDS RESPONSIBLE FOR CORRUPTIONS IN LIFE COMPANIES.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 13.—In the report of the committee on insurance law, of the American Bar association, made public today, government supervision of insurance companies is urged as a necessity.

This committee made recommendations on insurance laws at the last convention, but the matter was referred back for further consideration. The report will be submitted to the convention of the association, which meets at St. Paul August 28-29.

After giving figures to show the immensity of the insurance business in the United States, the report says:

"More people are therefore directly concerned with insurance than any other institution of modern life, and the public interest in insurance is intense, but the almost universal ignorance with regard to it and the principles upon which it is based has made possible, through legislation, ostensibly supervisory but actually destructive in its tendency, a greater menace to the interests of the policy holders than they have suffered through the mismanagement and dishonesty of company officials, and the incompetency or unfaithfulness characteristic of the majority of the state insurance departments."

"The most conspicuous exhibition of legislative unwisdom is found in the bills prepared by the Armstrong committee, and passed by the New York legislature, the most conspicuous because it has the widest advertising, and because of things the committee have failed to do and its ignorance of the subject is confessed."

The opinion is expressed that the accumulation of deferred dividends is responsible for the corruption developed in the conduct of life insurance companies.

Government supervision of insurance companies is urged as a necessity, but the burden of a tax against the companies by the various states are declared to be unjustifiable. These taxes, which are said to amount to $10,000,000 a year, are ultimately paid by the policy holders.

[illegible] companies more heavily than [illegible] companies, the report declares, is "hostile to the spirit of the federal compact."

Of state insurance departments the report says: "The trouble is that the state insurance departments are sinecures. They are political prizes. Knowledge of the insurance business is the last thing required. They are mere collection agencies. They offer the [illegible] seductive opportunities for fraud and graft that exist in the United States."

OAK PARK PREACHER TO WED A DIVORCEE

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Rev. Sidney Strong, for ten years pastor of the Second Congregational church of Oak Park, one of the largest churches in the fashionable suburb, who, in a series of sermons six or seven months ago denounced the divorce evil, is to be married to a divorcee, according to members of his church.

The clergyman has told members of his engagement to Mrs. C. K. McFadden, also of Oak Park. Mrs. McFadden was granted a divorce six weeks ago. The announcement of the engagement came as a blow to the church trustees and it is reported they will hold a meeting and take action.

BOY LIVES SINCE JULY 15, THOUGH NECK IS BROKEN

GREENVILLE, Pa., Aug. 13.—Patrick Kyrile, Jr., 14-year-old son of Patrick Kyrile, has lived for nearly a month with a broken neck. He was removed to Spencer hospital, Meadville, today, for treatment.

The boy was injured Saturday, July 15, while diving from a tree into shallow water. His head struck a rock and besides sustaining terrible scalp wounds his neck was broken. Since that time he has been under the care of physicians, and while his condition shows improvement, it was thought best to send him to a hospital. From his head down he is completely paralyzed.

REFUSED TO PAY FIRE LIABILITIES

GERMAN INSURANCE CO. WITHHOLDS PAYMENT OF $2,000,000—POLICY HAD NO "QUAKE" CLAUSE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—The Rhine and Moselle Insurance company, of Germany, has decided that it will not pay its $2,000,000 of liabilities arising from the conflagration. A cablegram to that effect was received today by General Manager Mathis from the home office. The company does not carry an earthquake clause and it is presumed at the local office that the head officials are putting forth the plea of an "act of Providence." Manager Mathis has made vigorous efforts to have his company pay the claims of policy holders, particularly the smaller and destitute ones. He said the cablegram was not clear and that he had demanded a more specific reply.

STRANGER AND A DIAMOND MISSING

POSTOFFICE CLERK SCRUTINIZES MAIL IN HOPE OF LEARNING ABOUT GEM'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Incoming mail at the local postoffice is being closely scrutinized in hope of locating a young woman suspected by R. L. Vest, a postal clerk, of having a valuable diamond ring belonging to him.

Vest lives at 221 East Cucharas street. A few nights ago a young woman secured a room at the latter's home. The next morning she knocked at the door of the kitchen in order to pay Mrs. Vest. In passing to the door it was necessary for the young lady to enter the dining room, where the ring lay on a buffet. Mr. Vest says he believes that the ring was taken about the time the stranger was waiting Mrs. Vest's response to her knock.

Other than this circumstance, there is no ground for suspicion against the young woman, and Mr. Vest is watching for her mail only with a view to unearthing this lone clew.

The loss has been reported to the police, who are investigating.

DECORATIONS FOR G. A. R. LAVISH

[illegible] OF KANSAS LEADING CANDIDATE FOR NATIONAL [illegible] BUSINESS [illegible] STARTS TODAY.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 13.—The rush of visitors to this city for the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic continues unabated, and from the present prospect it will be one of the most successful ever held by the Grand Army. According to the estimates of railroad men fully 100,000 people have so far arrived, and dozens of trains running in two and three sections are still on the way.

Minneapolis has risen to the occasion in magnificent fashion, and it is difficult to mention anything that could be done for the entertainment and comfort of her visitors which has not already been provided. Numerous committees have been appointed to receive the veterans at the depots, and a man, who but to mention who he is and declare his desire. At nearly every corner in the business section of the city is an information booth.

A feature of the thoughtfulness that underlies the entire work so far done by the [illegible] entertainment committee is found in the numerous benches that are stretched along both sides of the [illegible]. They are roughly affairs, [illegible] ly out of unplaned planks, but they afford a resting place for tens of thousands of weary [illegible]. No feature of the encampment has been so prolific of comfort and satisfaction.

The city itself is decorated as though every man had made it his personal business to see that Minneapolis looked her bravest and best. Flags and bunting are everywhere from roofs to sidewalks, and banners are swung in endless profusion across the streets. The decorations, lavish as they now seem, are still in progress, and they will be increased until the morning of Wednesday, when all the business houses of the city will close in honor of the grand parade.

The contest for national commander is growing warmer. Although no great amount of electioneering has so far been done. The friends of Captain P. H. Coney of Kansas are making what is outwardly the most [illegible] and claim to be fairly confident of the election of their man. Other candidates whose names are being strongly pushed are R. B. Brown of Zanesville, O., and Charles G. Burton of Missouri. There is no contest worth mentioning for any of the minor offices.

A meeting of the executive committee of the G. A. R. was held today to determine matters of routine relative to the business meeting of the encampment, which commences on Thursday morning. It is expected that considerable "there will result over the recent law passed by congress, driving the canteen out of the old soldiers' homes. Commander-in-Chief Tanner is in favor of passing a resolution deprecating the purpose of the law, but a strong element in the organization is against such action.

Another feature that may crop up is the old fight over the proposed erection, by the women of the south, of a statue of Henry Wirz, notorious for his atrocities while in command at Andersonville prison. This matter came up in 1901 and has been more or less alive ever since. All members of the Grand Army are vehemently opposed to the erection of a statue of Wirz, who was hanged for his crimes, but many of them declare that, in their opinion, the intention to erect the statue is not serious, and as the matter now stands, not worth the consideration which some are disposed to give it.

The social features of the encampment, which are numbered by the hundred, commenced today with regimental reunions and a reception given by Governor Johnson and the national patriotic concert was the evening feature in this city.

E. V. Tilden of Antelope county, Nebraska, an old soldier, died today of fatigue induced by the journey from his home. The program for tomorrow consists largely of receptions and business meetings by numerous affiliated societies and reunions of various regiments.

DEMANDS GRANTED; STRIKERS STILL OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—The stevedores and longshoreman's demands for increased wages were granted by the employing concerns, today, with the exception of the American Hawaiian Steamship company, which must first obtain sanction from eastern headquarters, and it is expected favorable action will be taken. The employes, however, refused to return to work with nonunion men and as a consequence all the lumber vessels are tied up.

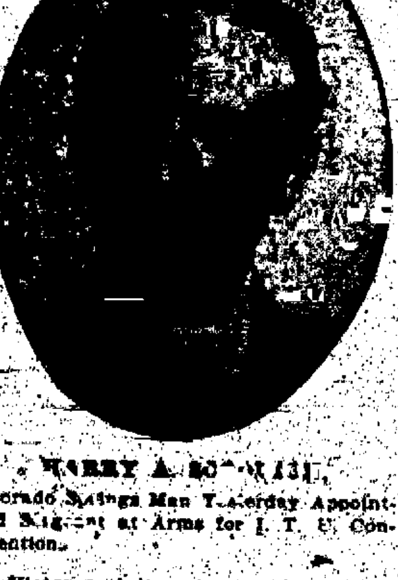

CONVENTION CARES FORGOTTEN FOR JOLLY GOLD CAMP JUNKET

Typos Make Famous Short Line Trip to Cripple Creek Today—Thousands of Books Are Presented to New Home Library on First Day of International Meeting.

Suspending business for pleasure, the members of the International Typographical union, who yesterday opened the fifty-second annual convention in this city, will spend today in going over the Short Line to the Cripple Creek district. Three special trains will leave the Santa Fe depot on East Pike's Peak avenue this morning, the first at 8:30 o'clock. Arrangements have been made to handle the crowd of over 1,500 people.

After dinner at the Cripple Creek hotels, the circle trip will be taken, the members visiting the various parts of the district. Returning, the trains will reach Colorado Springs early this evening.

on Victor and its mines, written by a member of the I. T. U. and published in a newspaper or magazine.

The convention adjourned yesterday afternoon to meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Temple theater. All business will be suspended today and every delegate, ex-delegate and visitor will go to Cripple Creek.

Convention Opens.

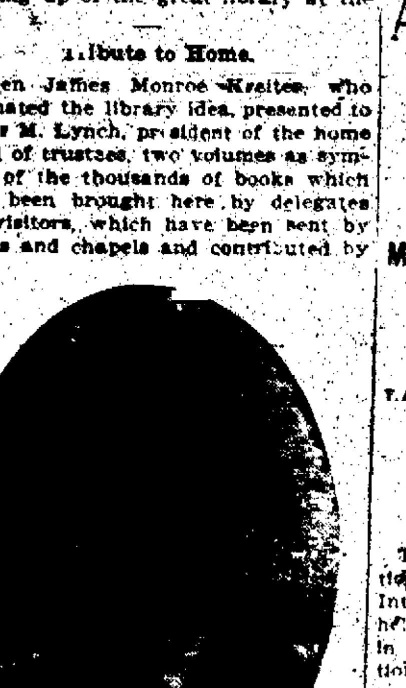

Nearly 800 of them representing the best there is in the world of American laborers, were in their seats at the Temple theater yesterday morning when Charles Deacon, chairman of the local committee of arrangements and superintendent of the Union Printers home, called the convention to order. A[illegible] elected delegates, members of the International Typographical union representing the 46,000 men under the jurisdiction of that great labor union in the United States and Canada. It was the largest, and it promises to be one of the most important conventions ever held by the union.

Immediately after the opening of the convention and the giving of addresses of welcome, the convention got down to business and before its adjournment at noon had made a considerable headway. Assembling on the City Hall steps after the close of the morning session the delegates, ex-delegates and visitors had a group photograph taken.

Business was resumed at the afternoon session, the feature of which, however, was the formal presentation of the books brought by individual printers and by unions and chapels for the building up of the great library at the home.

Tribute to Home.

When James Monroe Kreiter, who originated the library idea, presented to James M. Lynch, president of the home board of trustees, two volumes as symbolic of the thousands of books which have been brought here by delegates and visitors, which have been sent by unions and chapels and contributed by writers and men of note, he was acting for every printer in the country, for every man, either directly or indirectly, has helped place at least one book on the shelves of the home library. In making his presentation speech he paid a glowing tribute to the home.

"Nowhere is there another such institution as the Printers home," he said. "In distant states and climes we refer to it with prideful boast and righteous exultation; today we behold it in all its grandeur, in all its magnificence. This edifice, conceived in a spirit of kindred tendencies beautiful in its architecture, colossal in its eminence, grand as to its usefulness, typifies the [illegible] of the union printer, symbolizes his benevolence, index of his sweet charity and is at once a striking monument of his noble generosity.

"The small ones, as well as the larger ones, are shelved in yonder library. The delegate and the layman, the visitor and the chapel folk, the women of the auxiliary (God bless them), will be found side by side in keen recollection by those who in time to come will seek the library as a place of recreation and of rest.

"The touch of generous appreciation on the part of eminent authors and men prominent in federal and state affairs also finds life upon the shelves. This manifest evidence of kindness on the part of these great men was gathered solely through the untiring efforts of Mr. B. Frank Swigart, one of our St. Louis members.

"And now, my gracious craftspeople, kind, generous, benevolent, magnanimous, as you are, I want to express my estimate and the high regard I have for the union printer. How best shall I say it? Let it be: His loyalty to his obligation is steel-like in solidity, his heart is not only ox-like in proportion, but it is beautifully womanlike in tenderness."

Work of Convention.

Outside of the presentation of the books, the afternoon session was devoted entirely to business, and in an hour and a half's work a remarkably large amount of ground was covered. Following the initial call of the roll, upon recommendation of the credentials committee, credentials from the delegates whose unions had been late in electing were accepted.

A motion made by Delegate Thomson of Cleveland, that the address of Mayor H. C. Hall in consideration of its unusually high merit, be incorporated in the minutes of the day, was unanimously carried.

Atlanta was the first city to get its invitation to entertain the convention of the I. T. U. in a future year. Through R. L. Whites, the delegate from Atlanta union, No. 48, presented a letter to President Lynch, extending the greetings of the Georgia city union and an invitation that the 1910 session be held in "The Gate City of the South."

The main business of the afternoon was taken up with a consideration of the report of the laws committee. The committee submitted by Delegate Black of Louisville, to increase the salaries of the president and treasurer of the international union from $1,600 to $2,400. Each adopted by the convention on recommendation of the committee. Ten other propositions were submitted, but the majority were rejected, among those being propositions to divide the union into districts for organization purposes, to make the executive committee a board of appeals from decisions of the president, to increase benefit funds, and a declaration against private ownership of tools and machinery and the competitive wage system.

Important Resolutions.

Two resolutions of importance, by Delegates Coughlin of Chicago and Mr. Dirks of St. Louis, declaring for the appointment of a committee to draw up a plan for the pension of superannuated and incapacitated members were referred to the resolutions committee.

It was decided to make the consideration of the renewal of the agreement with the American Publishers association the special order of business for Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Several propositions were [illegible], but the [illegible] adopted by the laws committee was that drawn by the executive committee. This provides that the employer shall be protected against walkouts, strikes, boycotts, provided that he shall enter into an agreement with the I. T. U. to arbitrate all differences affecting wages, hours and working conditions. These differences or disputes may be taken before a local board of arbitration, and on appeal to the national board to be composed of three members of the executive board of the I. T. U. and three of the standing committee of the American Publishers association. This agreement is but a slight modification of the agreement which expires on May 1, 1907.

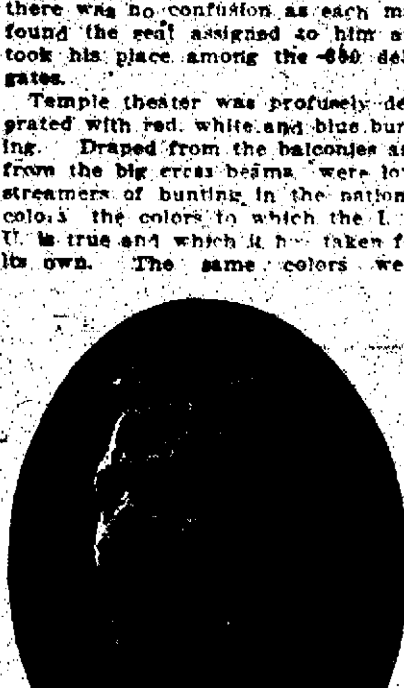

In the report of the laws committee there are still 35 propositions to be considered, dealing chiefly with new laws required by the eight-hour day.

Dignity of Labor.

If ever the dignity of labor was portrayed it was at yesterday's opening session of the Fifty-second annual convention. Impressive is the word that best describes the scene in the convention hall when, led by President James M. Lynch, the delegates arose and renewed their oath of allegiance to the International Typographical union.

Delegates began arriving early, and there was no confusion as each man found the seat assigned to him and took his place among the 650 delegates.

Temple theater was profusely decorated with red, white and blue bunting. Draped from the balconies and from the big cross beams were long streamers of bunting in the national colors, the colors to which the I. T. U. is true and which it has taken for its own. The same colors were draped from the sides of the stage, while the desks and press tables were covered. From the ceiling hung American and Canadian flags, symbolizing that the union is international in character.

A feature of the decorations was an eight-hour emblem, 3 [illegible] of [illegible] paper flowers by Delegate James G. D. Avil of Philadelphia union No. 2. With the design "8 HOURS" worked LABEL QUESTION TO BE DISCUSSED—DELEGATES WILL GO ON CRIPPLE CREEK EXCURSION TODAY.

The opening session of the convention of the Woman's Auxiliary to the International Typographical union was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Woodmen hall, opposite the International Typographical union headquarters on Bijou street.

Mrs. W. A. Snyder, president of the City of Sunshine auxiliary No. 48 to Typographical union No. 82, opened the session with an address of welcome to the visiting delegates and ex-delegates, after which Mayor Henry C. Hall welcomed the visitors to Colorado Springs. Mr. Hall said in part:

"Colorado Springs must necessarily mean more to members of the International Typographical union and to its auxiliary, than any other city for in this city has been founded, supported and maintained that institution known as the Union Printers home. It is the home of the auxiliary and I have been given to understand that as a result of your deliberations, there may be another home.

VARIOUS TOPICS ARE DISCUSSED

VISITORS' DAY AT SAGAMORE HILL—PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS FIVE LUNCHEON GUESTS.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 13.—This was visitors' day at Sagamore Hill. President Roosevelt's luncheon guests numbered five, and topics of discussion ranged from the prospects of Republican success in the congressional campaign to the digging of the Panama canal.

Representative James S. Sherman of New York, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, brought the matter for material discussion. He had the proofs of the new campaign text books for the president's decision and approval, besides several of the arguments which Speaker Cannon is to make in his convention speech Saturday at Danville, Ill.

Theodore P. Shonts, of the Isthmian canal committee, who landed from Panama Saturday, informed the president of affairs at present on the isthmus. Secretary Joseph B. Bishop of the commission came with Mr. Shonts and remained a house guest of the president. Henry W. Taft of New York, a brother of the secretary of war, was also a guest, as was Robert Bridges, the author.

KILLS BRIDE FOR AIR SHAFT CHAT

JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS HER FOR TALKING TO MAN AND THEN MAKES ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Apparently unfounded jealousy is believed by the police to have caused Vincenzo Lupo to shoot and kill his young and pretty bride, Aurea, in their apartment on the third floor of No. 345 East Twelfth street, yesterday. Lupo afterward attempted suicide by shooting himself through the head, and is dying in Bellevue hospital.

In his delirium in the hospital he continually cried,

"Yes, I killed her; I meant to kill her, and yet I loved her."

When Lupo returned home yesterday and found his wife engaged in conversation across the air shaft with Nicolo Bilotti, who lives with his wife at No. 341 East Twelfth street, he drew his revolver and began shooting.

His wife had rushed up to him, but retreated when she saw that he meant to kill. He [illegible] the third [illegible]. He then rushed into his bedroom and sent a shot into his own head.

GIRL [illegible] SPIRITUALISTS [illegible]

PERU, Ind., Aug. 13.—Maud Snow, aged 18, daughter of Davis Snow of Converse, [illegible] 30 miles south of here, has slept two weeks with only occasional wakenings and then by force on the part of a doctor or her parents. When awakened she cries: "I must sleep."

Spiritualists say it is a case of trance control; that the spirit exerting the dominating influence is ignorant and is prolonging the domination beyond endurance; and that unless a more enlightened and intelligent influence is introduced, breaking the grip of the ignorant spirit, the girl will die within a week.

When aroused today and told her name was being used in newspapers the girl cried and said: "I am sorry; don't let them have my picture." Then she immediately relapsed into her sleep.

NO ARREST YET OF CONTEMPT PRISONERS

DENVER, Aug. 13.—Henry L. Doherty, Fred A. Williams, George M. Ordway, J. Cook, Jr., the contempt prisoners, have so far succeeded in evading rearrest. Doherty is in the east. He left Denver on the Burlington Saturday night. Fred A. Williams is not in the city so far as known. It is believed he is on a fishing trip in Wyoming. George M. Ordway is believed to be in Denver but has so far escaped detention. J. Cook, Jr., may be in Denver. He was at Cassells yesterday afternoon and evening.

THIEF'S FATHER HAS COMMITTED SUICIDE

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Tribune today says:

"Theodore Stensland, son of the fugitive bank president, made last night a full statement of his knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the flight of his father and touching the colossal forgery fraud in the bank. Young Stensland not only flatly denied that he ever had knowledge of the plot before August 3 last, but submitted various proofs with which he expects to substantiate his story when told before a jury. He declares absolutely that he was not only ignorant of the steals perpetrated, but that he never profited in any way from them.

The young man advanced the belief that his father has not fled the country, but has committed suicide."

MRS. CRAIGIE, AUTHOR AND DRAMATIST, DIES

LONDON, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Pearl Mary Teresa Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes) the author and dramatist, died in her sleep some time during the night, of hay fever, [illegible]. Her death was totally unexpected, she having been perfectly well when she retired. Mrs. Craigie had been spending a fortnight at her home, Steep Hill castle, Ventnor, Isle of Wight, where she went Sunday afternoon to keep an engagement.

L. F. EMMONS TELLS WHERE MINERALS LIE

WHITE RIVER PLATEAU AND NORTH PARK MENTIONED AS FAVORABLE.

GEOLOGIST GIVES AN OPINION AS TO THE MOST LIKELY POINTS IN STATE OF COLORADO.

DENVER, Aug. 13.—Professor L. F. Emmons, government geologist, was in Denver today on his annual tour of inspection of the work of the section of mining geology of the United States geological survey. He spent the morning with David H. Moffat and several prominent mining men, and will leave for Central City tomorrow, to complete some work begun last year. He will be accompanied by Senator H. M. Teller.

When asked to predict from a purely scientific standpoint, where the next mining excitements in Colorado ought to be, he said:

"Mineral is where the prospector finds it and it's mighty hard to tell in advance where the mineral lies.

"However, from a scientific standpoint, considering the formation and the time of the eruptions, I should think that rich strikes might be made around the edges of the White river plateau, which lies near the Moffat road about half way between Steamboat Springs and Glenwood Springs. Another promising country from its formation and its eruptions is the North Park country, along the main range. Another country which may have considerable copper and gold is the Long's Peak country. It has the same granite formation as that near Butte."

In talking of the increased price of silver, Professor Emmons said:

"I do not think the price of silver will go above 70. I have always said that the normal price is between 65 and 70. The purchase of the government may have local effect that will put up the price temporarily, but there will not be enough bought to materially advance the market value. The price of silver must depend upon the demand, and that will not materially increase. So much copper is being [illegible] in electrical apparatus, that the price has gone up in spite of the greatly increased production, but this is solely because the increased demand exceeds the [illegible] production."

EX-[illegible] SCOTT [illegible]

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—William E. Scott, Sr., former deputy auditor of Athens county, convicted of embezzlement, was today sentenced to seven years imprisonment and was brought to the penitentiary tonight. Scott's peculations are said to have exceeded $20,000.

GOMPERS ATTACKS THEODORE SHONTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has replied to a published interview with Theodore P. Shonts, chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, relative to the plan to employ Chinese coolie labor in the construction of the Panama canal. The statement is an attack on Mr. Shonts' accuracy concerning facts and his knowledge of the law, and charges him with attempting to annul the eight-hour principle as applied to canal work. Mr. Gompers reiterates that Mr. Shonts promised not to use Chinese labor on the isthmus.

HAVE EVIDENCE OF JURY TAMPERING

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 13.—During the trial in the United States court here today of J. T. Carroll, a Butte lumberman, on the charge of illegally fencing land, United States Attorney Rasch informed the court that he had evidence of attempted jury tampering. He named Will Carroll, brother of the defendant, as the moving spirit in the matter. The court ordered an investigation.

TOLD OF HERBERT SPENCER

When Herbert Spencer was a boy his father sent him away from home to school. The youngster became homesick, and, with 2 shillings in his pocket, made his way home, over 120 miles, in three days, walking most of the way. He did forty-eight miles the first day and forty-seven on the second. On the third a friendly coach driver took him most of the way for nothing.

AN ALCOHOL EXPERT.

An alcohol expert was before the senate finance committee telling the senators about the advantages of denaturized alcohol, which some of the statesmen think is to revolutionize the light, heat and power problems. "This alcohol," said the expert, "cannot be used for drinking purposes or as the basis for any drink whatsoever. It will be denaturized and unfit for human consumption." "Can't you drink it at all?" asked Senator Daniel of Virginia. "No, sir, it is unfit to drink." "Isn't there any way you can fix it to drink?" "No way at all, senator." "Not even if you put a little mint in it?" questioned the Virginian.

PREFERS THE NAVY.

Two new police chaplains in New York, the Rev. Father Chadwick and the Rev. Mr. Wade, are learning how to ride a horse at an uptown riding academy to enable them to make a showing in the police parade this year. Father Chadwick served as chaplain in the United States navy and was on the Maine when she blew up. The first time he saw his charger he looked over it critically and then clambered aloft. When the lesson was over Mr. Wade asked his brother minister how he liked it. "Well, just between ourselves," was the guarded reply, "I think I would rather be back in the navy."

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

SILVER WEAKENS.

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—Silver weakened in the ninth and two singles, an error of omission by Schaefer, an intentional pass and Stahl's double gave Boston two runs and the game, 5 to 4. Young was pounded for a triple and four singles in the opening inning, but held Detroit safe after that. Boston left for home tonight. Score:

PLAY TIE SHUT-OUT GAME.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Chicago and New York played a nine-inning tie shut-out game today, both teams agreeing to stop play at 5 o'clock to allow New York to catch a train. White allowed the visitors but three scattered hits. Chicago had the bases full in the sixth inning, but splendid fielding by New York kept the home club from scoring. Score:

BREAK EVEN.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—Before the largest weekday crowd that has attended a local baseball game in recent years, St. Louis and Philadelphia broke even in a double header, the home team losing the first, 8 to 0, and winning the second, 5 to 1. Waddell essayed to pitch both games, but continuous hitting drove him from the slab in the second inning of the second game. During the first game a spectator in the grandstand rushed onto the field and attempted to strike Umpire O'Loughlin. He was quickly surrounded by St. Louis players and led from the field. Score:

First Game—										R.	H.	E.

ALLEGED BUNCO MAN IS NABBED IN PUEBLO

Upon request of the local police, the Pueblo authorities last night arrested a young man on a charge of buncoing an Iowa farmer out of $90 in this city. The Iowan, whose name is withheld, was approached Sunday by two men with the usual bogus check. One of them was in need of money at once, and gave a bogus $500 check as security for a $90 "loan."

Later in the day the victim again met the two men, who secured the check from him by pretending that they would cash it at the Antlers hotel. Neither has been heard from since.

THUMB PRINTS IN THE ARMY.

The navy is to follow the army in adopting the Galton system of identification by thumb prints, although, to avoid irritation among the men, it will be applied only to new recruits. For while the measure may be plausibly explained as taken for the purpose of identifying the dead or wounded, every one knows that its chief value is in capturing deserters. Of course, as the men re-enlist they will come under the new regulation, but this is not quite the same thing.

CHARGES OF IRREGULARITY ARE TO BE INVESTIGATED

A motion that the charges to the effect that the Union Printers home [illegible] be investigated, was made at yesterday's session of the I. T. U. convention by Charles W. Fear, delegate from Kansas City union No. 80, while a resolution to the same effect was presented by Delegates Mallon and Markey of New Orleans union No. 17.

Both resolutions and the motion contained the clause that a special committee be appointed to investigate, but were ruled out of order.

It was stated yesterday afternoon in the convention that charges had been made to this effect that they had been freely circulated throughout the country, and that it was due to the superintendent and trustees as well as [illegible] that the matter be investigated.

Mr. Fear, in explaining his motion, said that he made it on request of Mrs. Lillie G. Comer, president of the Colorado Springs Label league. He produced a circular-letter sent out by the Label league last April, making the charges in detail, and specifying the firms with which it was alleged the home management traded.

Although the question was not definitely referred to the Union Printer's home committee, members of that committee held that it should go to them, and it is probable that it will be discussed in their meetings. Mr. Fear says that it will come up again in a different form.

PRESS CLUB BENEFIT THE GREATEST EVER GIVEN HERE

"The greatest benefit show ever given in Colorado Springs," is Manager S. N. Nye's verdict on the Press club vaudeville given at the Opera house yesterday afternoon and last night; and what Nye doesn't know about shows isn't worth knowing. That this opinion was also generally held by both audiences was attested by the liberal applause that followed every number and the many encores demanded. From start to finish the performances went through without a hitch, and the only difficulty experienced was in holding them within the time limit—a difficulty due to the fact that there were more good things on the program than could well be given in two and a half hours.

The program opened with several mystifying stunts by Laska, the Mystic. This famous wizard "exposed" several of his most celebrated tricks in a manner so simple that when he had finished everybody in the audience knew just how they were done, and will continue to know—until they try. Ines and Oder, child song and dance artists, charmed the audience with the cleverest juvenile act seen in Colorado Springs in many a day. The winsome grace and remarkable stage presence of these diminutive players made their act one of the hits of the performance.

De Harport, Mexican solitario player, and Radac, the man who laughs at locksmiths, fully justified the hopes of the management in bringing them here. Both were secured from the Orpheum circuit at great expense, and their appearance in Colorado Springs is the first on any stage in the country except those of the Orpheum playhouses. De Harport's instrument, the solitario, has a sweetness of tone peculiar to itself, and by his rendition of the soft, dreamy music of his native land the performer completely captivated his listeners.

Yesterday afternoon Radac met the first defeat of his professional career when Chief of Police Adams succeeded in putting on him one pair of handcuffs that would "stay put." It was hardly a fair test, for the handcuffs were rusty and not in good working order, but even as it was they did not baffle Radac long. Immediately after the performance he went to the police station and asked another trial, and this time experienced no difficulty in working himself free of the same pair of bracelets. At the evening performance he repeated the feat. In no matter what position he was fastened with handcuffs and leg irons it was all the same. Not more than two or three minutes was required for Radac to free himself of them all.

The humorous song hit of the show was George Hemus' rendition of "The Nutty Bug," a brand new topical song, the words of which were written by Morris M. Rathbun and the music by Clarence D. Sears. "The Nutty Bug" tells of the man who is afflicted with what is commonly known as "wheels in his head," and Mr. Hemus' comedy work, together with the special drop curtain through which were projected the heads of the juvenile chorus, made it highly effective.

Kipling's famous ballad, "Danny Deever," was sung with rare effect by Mr. Julian M. Worthington, and the audience showed its appreciation by demanding more encores than the limited time would permit.

W. G. Spires, "Slug 23," is a monologue artist whom Lew Dockstader, Al G. Field and the other professionals in that line ought to meet, just for the good it would do them. It was a case of glad hand from start to finish when Spires came on the stage. "The Original Pikers" and "The Roosevelt Bear Hunt," the two comedy sketches of the show, made good all predictions and promises. The first, a skit written by Morris M. Rathbun, is supposed to show what happened or might have happened when Lieutenant Pike discovered Pike's Peak, and the second, written by Eugene Taylor of Denver, describes some incidents of President Roosevelt's last bear hunt in Colorado.

H. H. Buckwalter's famous moving pictures were given under the personal direction of Mr. Buckwalter, the man who has advertised Colorado through this medium from one end of the continent to the other. The picture of the Elks' parade at the Denver convention was here shown for the first time, and it is easily one of the best ever seen. Another picture which made a hit with the audience was a view of several miles of Short Line scenery taken from a moving train.

A large majority of the prominent society people of Colorado Springs attended the benefit and gave each number an enthusiastic reception. In the evening some of those occupying the boxes were Hon. and Mrs. Franklin E. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. George Rex Buckman, Colonel and Mrs. Franklin Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, Miss Lucy Hayes, Mr. Jefferson Hayes Davis, Mrs. Hazlehurst, Miss Edith Timming, General and Mrs. William H. Beck, Mrs. Paul Ward Beck, Major Wales, Mrs. Francis W. Goddard and party, the Misses Scudder, Mr. Herbert Tod, Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Ballou and party, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sachs and party.

For the afternoon performance some of those occupying the boxes were Mrs. Theodore F. DeWitt, Mrs. Duncan Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. William Lennox, Miss Lennox, Mrs. M. J. Ely, Mrs. J. C. Rundquist, Mrs. W. W. Price, Miss Dorothy Price, Mrs. E. A. Sawyer, Mrs. Robert Kerr, Mrs. L. W. Hart, Mrs. J. A. Morrison, Mrs. W. E. Riddle, Mrs. E. C. Baker, Mrs. Lula Bernard, Miss Willock, Merrill Bernard and others.

"QUAND DE REZKE" IS POOR

When Edouard de Reszke comes to this country next fall to sing he will begin again to make his fortune. Most of the money that he earned here has been lost, so the banjo finds himself near the end of his career compelled to start all over again. His savings were invested in Warsaw, which was very prosperous until the recent troubles in Russia. Real estate had been for several years an especially profitable form of investment. M. De Reszke had put his money into this kind of property, and it had nearly all been swept away in the recent decline of values. It is to his brother Jean that he indebted for the new costumes which he will bring over next fall. His first misfortunes came during the war with Japan, when much of his fortune was seized by the Russian government.

in white and red carnations on a field of blue cornflowers.

The convention was opened with orchestral music, a new feature arranged by the local committee which was highly appreciated by the members of the convention.

Chairman Deacon rapped for order at 10:15 o'clock. The delegates arose while the Rev. Clayton S. Brooks led in prayer.

Address of Welcome.

Received with long applause, W. J. Snider, president of Colorado Springs Typographical union No. 82, was the first speaker extending to the International Typographical union a hearty welcome. Mr. Snider was followed by Mayor Henry C. Hall, who extended a welcome in behalf of the city, and by R. L. Holland, who spoke in behalf of the board of county commissioners. O. B. Willcox, in speaking in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, paid a tribute to Louis R. Ehrich, who was one of the citizens most influential in securing for Colorado Springs the Printers' home. E. W. Kent, president of the Real Estate exchange, welcomed the printers as the followers of the great Benjamin Franklin. A letter was read from Clarence P. Dodge, representing the newspaper publishers of the city, regarding his inability to express in person his appreciation of the loyalty of the members of the union.

In introducing President James M. Lynch, W. J. Snider presented him with a gavel made from the wood of the first tree planted on the home grounds, being placed there at the dedication ceremonies by Bishop MacLaren. The inscription on the gavel was:

Presented to James M. Lynch, President International Typographical Union at Fifty-second Annual Convention, August 13-18, 1906.

The reception President Lynch received was tremendous. Every mention of his name during the previous speeches had brought great rounds of applause, but when the International president appeared on the platform his great popularity was attested by the cheers that arose from the convention hall.

Climax of enthusiasm.

As President Lynch finished his speech, there appeared in the rear of the platform an electric sign "8 Hours." It brought the convention to its feet—the climax of the enthusiasm of the opening session.

Immediate consideration of business followed President Lynch's response. Accredited delegates were sworn in, and it was decided on motion of Delegate Charles W. Fear of Kansas City, to hold daily sessions from 9 to 12 in the morning and 2 to 5 except today, when the trip is to be taken to Cripple Creek.

After appointment of the usual convention committees the following officers were announced:

Max S. Hays, Cleveland, reading clerk; N. E. McPhail, Boston, assistant secretary; H. A. Scholton, Colorado Springs, sergeant-at-arms; G. H. Mesick and J. H. Ingledue, of Colorado Springs, messengers.

On motion of Delegate Foley of Denver, resolutions were passed expressing the sympathy of the convention to Delegate McLean of Denver in the death of his wife. Resolutions in appreciation of the services of the late Organizer Radly of Texas, and of sympathy to Organizer Brady, now ill in a Louisville hospital were adopted.

George E. Esterling, president of the Denver Ex-Delegates association, extended an invitation to the delegates to participate in the entertainments arranged in Denver for next Saturday and Sunday, which was unanimously accepted.

The committees announced by President Lynch are:

LYNCH REJOICES OVER PROGRESS

IN HIS ANNUAL REPORT, I. T. U. PRESIDENT POINTS TO VICTORIES GAINED DURING THE LAST YEAR.

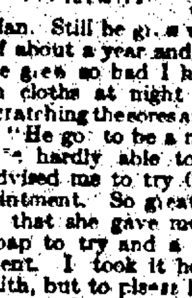

Reviewing the remarkable progress of the International Typographical union, forecasting a future marked by the same pronounced success that has characterized all of the organization's undertakings, the annual report of President James M. Lynch is most optimistic in nature. It deals with the eight-hour day, arbitration agreements and other important questions which have come up during the year. In part the report says:

"The report of your president for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1906, covers one of the most important periods in the history of the International Typographical union. The fate of the international body for a time hung in the balance, not in the sense that the organization could have been crushed out, but that defeat at any important point in the eight-hour campaign under way would have meant a backward step, the effect of which would have required years to eradicate. Plunged into a great industrial struggle without the full period of preparation that it was hoped might elapse, forced for a time to try every resource in order to gather the money with which to carry on the battle, we have emerged from the conflict with a shorter workday securely established and the hope for complete victory with a safe basis on which to rest.

"The relations with the American Newspaper Publishers association under the arbitration agreement in effect between that organization and the International Typographical union have continued to be of the most amicable nature. Appended to this report is the proposed agreement between the American Newspaper Publishers association and the International Typographical union that is to take the place of the agreement now in effect. It is submitted to the convention for its approval or disapproval, but it is recommended for adoption by the executive council.

"One of the beneficial results of our eight-hour struggle has been the awakening to the value of the label coincident with the conduct of the eight-hour strike. Your president has urged local unions to inaugurate label campaigns, and in the main this recommendation has been made effective. As a result, the label has been an important factor in winning the eight-hour victories. The agitation for the label must continue after peace has been firmly established. Too many of our local unions whose jurisdictions are thoroughly organized make the mistake of ignoring the label. Because of their present strength they are blind to future emergencies. The folly of this course was emphatically demonstrated in our eight-hour struggle. It is to be hoped that our unions will not again in a period of peace and prosperity rest on their laurels and neglect an agitation that will assure a continuance of acceptable conditions.

"The earthquake and fires that so disastrously affected San Francisco and several other California cities are so well understood as they affected our interests that extended comment is unnecessary in this report. The executive council, believing that immediate financial relief was necessary, sent $12,000 to San Francisco and $1,000 to other centers. An appeal was also sent to all our local unions to financially aid the California sufferers. The action of the council, in appropriating the sums mentioned, is submitted to the convention for such action as may be necessary. It is understood that all our unions and members affected by the California earthquake and fire are gradually recovering."

BABY COVERED WITH SORES

Would Scratch and Tear the Flesh Unless Hands Were Tied. Wasted to a Skeleton. Awful Suffering for Over a Year. Grew Worse Under Doctors—Skin Now Clear.

WOULD HAVE DIED BUT FOR CUTICURA.

"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arm, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh.

"He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My Aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. So great was her faith in it that she gave me a small piece of Soap to try and a little of the Ointment. I took it home without any faith, but to please her I tried it, and it seemed to dry up the sores a little.

"I sent to the drug store and got a cake of the Soap and a box of the Ointment and followed the directions, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any sores of any kind since.

"He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for your most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. (signed) Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D., No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1905."

"NEVER SAY DIE" IS TYPOS' SLOGAN

ON BEHALF OF LOCAL CRAFTSMEN, PRESIDENT SNIDER OF NO. 82 RECEIVES THE VISITORS

In welcoming the International Typographical union and its convention, in behalf of Colorado Springs union No. 82, President William J. Snider said:

"Among the pleasures of life that it has been my good fortune to enjoy I can recall none at this time that has appealed to me with a greater degree of satisfaction than the privilege of extending to the delegates and visitors to the Fifty-second session of the International Typographical union a most hearty welcome.

"Colorado Springs Typographical union No. 82 is a small organization numerically speaking, but its membership is composed of men who are made of that stuff that for fifty years has constituted the backbone of our great international organization. They drove entirely eliminated from their lexicon the word 'Fail' and in the eight-hour contest for eight hours their motto is 'Never Say Die.'

"It is such an organization as this, ladies and gentlemen, that I have had the honor of representing as president for the past two and a half years, and it is on behalf of these 50 loyal craftsmen that I extend to you a most cordial and fraternal greeting to the Home City—the city of sunshine and eight hours.

"It is not my desire to enter into a discussion of the movement for eight hours, which has had the attention of every printer in the jurisdiction of the I. T. U. during the past year. I simply wish to say that the struggle has been a glorious one, and a most successful one, too.

"The union printers of the United States and the Dominion of Canada should be loud and long in their praises for the noble efforts in their behalf of the fathers of the grand cause, James M. Lynch and his fellow officers. It is due to him and to them that the lasting gratitude of every one of our 50,000 members be extended.

"It is not necessary that I tell you anything of the entertainment that has been provided for you during the coming week. Chairman Deacon, who, with his committeemen, has been busy for many months in that direction, will convince you before your departure that you have, to use the language of the day, 'gone some.' If you do not have a good time during your stay, it will be your own fault.

"Your home, that grand institution of which you are so justly proud, should receive your keenest investigation, that you may return to your homes and friends and be prepared to tell them exactly what it is like and what a glorious work it is doing.

"Ladies and gentlemen, let me thank you for your kind attention and again extend to you a most cordial and sincere welcome."

MAILERS ARE HOLDING ANNUAL CONVENTION

In connection with the I. T. U. convention is being held the fourth session of the Mailers Trades District union, one of the allied organizations. The convention holds its meetings in the evenings, having secured rooms near the local headquarters. The opening meeting was held at the Alamo hotel Sunday evening, with President James T. Mulcahy of St. Louis, who also holds the position of third vice president of the I. T. U., in the chair.

Delegates present:

R. T. Allen and F. W. Worsley, Boston; Charles Hedrick and J. McNichols, Chicago; J. Jarvin, St. Louis; John McLachlan, Denver; W. S. Hollister, Indianapolis; John Fisher, New York, and Edward Ely, Cincinnati.

BOOST FOR HEARST SLIGHTLY DELAYED

An effort was made yesterday to secure a vote of thanks from the I. T. U. in behalf of William Randolph Hearst for the aid and moral support he has given the union in its eight-hour fight. The first was made by Thomas O. Stuart, delegate from Pittsburg, but as his resolution was not properly prepared, was declared out of order. The second was made in the afternoon by F. C. Roberts, one of the delegates from Washington, D. C. The consideration of his resolution was objected to by Delegate T. W. McCullough of Omaha No. 190, and was therefore referred to the committee on resolutions. Mr. McCullough states that he will fight the passage of such a resolution, considering it merely a boost for Hearst's political ambitions.

WOMAN OF 69 IS TO CLIMB PIKE'S PEAK

Although 69 years of age, Mrs. C. P. Kingsbury, a delegate from St. Joseph, Mo., to the Woman's auxiliary convention, will try to climb to the summit of Pike's Peak Friday night.

"I walked to the top of Seven Falls Sunday," she said, "and now I am going to the top of Pike's Peak. Oh, you think I won't be able to walk all the way to the summit and then back again! You'll see. I intend to start about 9:00 p. m. and get to the top of the Peak before sunrise. And I am going to walk back, too. I know I can do it."

Mrs. Kingsbury will be accompanied by a party of about 50 people.

'ROUND THE WORLD TRIP ON A WAGER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—H. W. T. Egtin, a nephew of Rear Admiral Evans, and Richard J. Cook, both college graduates, have started to work their way around the world on a wager of $30,000. They are clad in working garb, and left Washington with only ... pennies to take them to Newport News. They earned this money in a restaurant.

The terms of the wager are that the young men shall return within the year, and that during that time they shall not receive any financial assistance or beg, but literally make their own way around the globe by any means of travel they may be able to employ.

THE WINNING STROKE

If more than ordinary skill in playing brings the honors of the game to the winning player, so exceptional merit in a remedy ensures the commendation of the well informed, and as a reasonable amount of outdoor life and recreation is conducive to the health and strength, so does a perfect laxative tend to one's improvement in cases of constipation, biliousness, headaches, etc. It is all-important, however, in selecting a laxative, to choose one of known quality and excellence, like the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., a laxative which sweetens and cleanses the system effectually, when a laxative is needed, without any unpleasant after effects, as it acts naturally and gently on the internal organs, simply assisting nature when nature needs assistance, without griping, irritating, or debilitating the internal organs in any way, as it contains nothing of an objectionable or injurious nature. As the plants which are combined with the figs in the manufacture of Syrup of Figs are known to physicians to act most beneficially upon the system, the remedy has met with their general approval as a family laxative, a fact well worth considering in making purchases.

It is because of the fact that SYRUP OF FIGS is a remedy of known quality and excellence, and approved by physicians that has led to its use by so many millions of well informed people, who would not use any remedy of uncertain quality or inferior reputation. Every family should have a bottle of the genuine on hand at all times, to use when a laxative remedy is required. Please to remember that the genuine Syrup of Figs is for sale in bottles of one size only, by all reputable druggists and that full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co., is plainly printed on the front of every package. Regular price, 50c per bottle.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAWS.

THE RECENT primary election in Illinois was noteworthy for two reasons: because it gave the people their first opportunity to test the workings of the new primary law, and because, on the Republican side, it resulted in the overwhelming triumph of Senator Cullom. The first of these events was of course the more important, though, as in the case of the elections held a few weeks ago under similar conditions in Tennessee and Arkansas, it can not be accepted as proof either of the success or failure of the new method.

Senator Cullom's victory was almost a foregone conclusion, for he had every advantage of experience and fitness for the place, and in addition the party organization was behind him. His opponent, former Governor Richard Yates, is admittedly a weak man whose principal stock in trade is the name of his father, the famous "War Governor" of Illinois. Senator Cullom, on the other hand, has been in Congress for more than forty years and in the Senate for nearly a quarter of a century. As regards the respective fitness of the two men it was a contest between a giant and a pygmy, and the final result would doubtless have been the same no matter by what method it was reached.

The feature of the election which is attracting the most attention is the failure of the people to make the most of their opportunity. For the first time in the state all of the primaries of all parties were held on the same day and voters had the chance to cast their ballots for candidates from United States Senator down to Sheriff. Inasmuch as this law was designed expressly to help the people throw off boss domination it was expected that they would take advantage of it, at least to the extent of casting the full vote. But this expectation was not realized, for the vote was extremely light. It is the old story of popular indifference on primary election day.

No primary or other election law can be drafted that will give the people control of their own organizations and nominations unless they take the trouble to make it effective by going to the polls on election day. So long as a majority of the people hold to the fatuous belief that it is only necessary for them to vote at the general elections they may expect to have bad government, for it is the primary and not the general election that really determines the character of the men who are to hold office. As a general proposition the people who complain the loudest about boss rule, corrupt politics, etc., are the very ones who can not be induced to vote at a primary. When asked to do so they say either that it isn't necessary, or that the whole affair is cut and dried anyway, so the vote of a mere private citizen makes no difference one way or the other. And when thousands of voters put this belief into practice a cut-and-dried primary is the inevitable result.

The success of such primary laws as those of Illinois, Tennessee and Arkansas, and of all other primary laws as well, depends on the interest taken in them by the people. So long as indifference prevails there is no reason to look for any change for the better.

STREET RAILWAY EARNINGS.

LAST SUNDAY afternoon the register dial on one of the street cars returning from Stratton Park to the city showed a total of 148 fares rung up on the second collection alone. This was the number indicated when the car reached Pike's Peak Avenue, and as a score or more of people boarded it at that corner and others farther north it is easy to see that the earnings of the car for the single trip from the park to the North End were in excess of $15. This is not an uncommon occurrence. Every car bound to and from the Park and Manitou is jammed full on Sundays and carries a load on other days which in hot weather is rather uncomfortable.

The cars are not built to carry 148 people, but the stingy policy of the street railway company in not providing sufficient equipment to handle the traffic makes necessary the packing of passengers like sardines. In the car above referred to every seat was jammed as full as it would hold, people were standing up in front of those seated, both front and rear platforms were filled, and the running boards and rear bumper were so crowded that it would scarcely have been possible for anybody else to find a foothold. The only bits of space not occupied were the roof and the front bumper.

This incident is not cited because it is at all unusual—on the contrary [illegible] on every Sunday [illegible] because it gives some idea of the [illegible] business done by the [illegible] when [illegible] duce the [illegible] poverty, but they [illegible] facts [illegible] it will not be hard for the [illegible] a little figuring on its own account by which it can gain an idea of the amount of money taken in by the company on a busy Sunday.

Every seven and a half minutes a car goes to or from Stratton Park or Manitou. This makes four cars every seven and a half minutes, or approximately, one every two minutes. If each of them was earning $15 a trip throughout the day this would yield the astonishing revenue of $7.50 a minute on the Manitou and Canon lines alone. But of course all of the cars do not carry 148 passengers on a trip, but it is safe to say that they average at least one-half of that number. This would make the gross earnings of the company close to $4,000 a day, which most of us will admit is not half bad.

In the face of the proof of its overwhelming prosperity which everybody can see every day, it is nothing less than an insult to the intelligence of the people for the street railway company to repeat the assertion that it can not reduce fares without losing money. If ever a public utility corporation had a good thing without strings attached to it the Colorado Springs and Interurban Railway company is the one. It enjoys the use of the public highways without the slightest provision for reimbursing the city except sprinkling the streets. A few weeks ago it sought a new franchise for a line on the East Side, and refused even to grant this concession. It practices a form of brigandage known as the double-fare system to the two points where the travel is heaviest, and finally, it has refused to pay taxes upon the appraised value of its franchises.

It is not necessary to go away from home to find instances of the robber corporation. The Colorado Springs and Interurban Railway company is a sufficiently good example.

UNCLE SAM AS A TRADER.

YOUR UNCLE SAM is doing pretty well on the whole, thank you. His domestic affairs have been in a very prosperous condition for the last ten years and he has also been able to do a little swapping with his neighbors to his general advantage and we hope also to theirs.

According to statistics just presented by the Department of Commerce and Labor, to which allusion was made in these columns last week, the population of the United States during the last ten years increased 26 per cent, but imports increased 87 per cent and exports a full 100 per cent. Exported manufactures show an increase during that time of no less than 153 per cent. As was predicted the Asiatic trade shows an immense increase, the imports being 60 per cent greater and the exports 232 per cent greater than they were in 1896. The actual value of this increase in trade with Asia and Oceanica is $92,000,000 for imports and $98,000,000 for exports.

It is a significant commentary on the increased prosperity of the country that the increased value of the imports of diamonds, precious stones and jewelry is from $8,000,000 in 1896 to $42,000,000 in the fiscal year just closed. The total increase in the value of all imports was $447,000,000 and the total increase in the value of all exports reached the magnificent sum of $861,000,000.

It will appear from the figures that not only is Uncle Sam not a bankrupt, but he is not traveling that road. The United States' commerce with Asia is still in its infancy. The administrative policy which has placed the United States in its rightful position as a world power has thereby opened up markets for its products which will increase for years to come.

Cornelius P. Shea, head of the International Teamsters union who was the leading spirit in the strike in Chicago last year in which funerals were mobbed, has been re-elected president after an exciting campaign in which fist fights and slugging matches were the most conspicuous feature. It is a pity that the teamsters and other organizations with pugilistic proclivities don't spend a little time studying the typographical union to see how a labor organization ought to be conducted.

The managers of the Bryan reception are greatly worried over their inability to find three Democrats great enough to ride in the carriage with the Peerless when he drives to Madison Square Garden. The people of Colorado will cheerfully offer to lend them the Hon. Tom Patterson. Anything to get him out of the state long enough for the rest of us to draw a long breath.

Former Senator James K. Jones, of Arkansas, late Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is now an attorney for the Standard Oil Company. Thus does the octopus swallow up patriots. If Mr. Bryan knew enough law to make him worth while the Standard might get him, too.

EATING CANDY.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The subject is one of great interest because of the immense amount of candy eaten in this country. The physicians tell us that entirely too much is used, that the custom of eating candy between meals and lunching off fudge is very bad for the digestive organs and is the cause of much of the kidney trouble that afflicts humanity. This corresponds with the observation of most persons of the male gender who have other appetites than that for sweets. But the question at issue is one of quality rather than quantity, and there ought not to be a great deal of difficulty in settling it. Analytical chemists can easily tell glucose, chalk, etc., from pure sugar.

Bad as the situation is in this country, it is said to be worse in Great Britain, where much more sugar is consumed per capita than in any other country of the world. Seven years ago Mulhall, the statistician, estimated that the average per capita consumption in Great Britain was 88 pounds annually. In this country it was 63, in Germany 31, and in all other nations below 30 pounds, Russia closing the list with only 17 pounds. But recent estimates for this country based on production of sugar alone give over 73 pounds, not including glucose and molasses. The amount seems large and it is evident that great care should be taken to secure purity of product.

Sugar is one of the great elements in preserving life, but nature seems to have intended most of it to be made in the stomach, where many foods are turned to grape sugar. Introducing large quantities of ordinary sugar into the digestive organs is generally held to be deleterious. The recent death of a prominent British statesman is laid to the fact that his only tipple was lemonade of which one-half was composed of sugar.

LIEUT. PIKE'S DIARY

For One Hundred Years Ago Today

Thursday, 14th August.—Embarked at half past five o'clock, passed the Park, which is ten miles round, and not more than three-quarters of a mile across, bearing from S. 5 degrees E. to due N. At its head we breakfasted, and just as we were about to put off, we saw and brought to a canoe, manned with three engagees of Mr. ——, who informed us that the Little Osage had marched a war party against the Kansas, and the Grand Osage a party against our citizens on the Arkansaw River. Wrote by them to the General and all friends.

Gave the poor fellows some whiskey and eight quarts of corn, they having had only two turkeys in four days. We left them and proceeded very well in the afternoon, and encamped on an island above Turkey Island. Distance advanced, twenty-eight miles.

Shortly after we left the Yungar river, the Osage became narrower, and evidently shewed the diminution occasioned by the loss of the waters of the former stream. On the eastern shore is a pond of water about twenty paces from the bank, half a mile in circumference; it is elevated at least twenty feet above the surface of the river; this appeared the more singular, as the soil seemed to be sandy, whence it might be concluded that the water of the pond would speedily discharge through the soil into the river; but there appeared to be no reason for any such deduction. From thence to a few miles below the park, the banks of the river continued as usual. We now, for the first time, were entertained with the sight of prairie land, but it was still interspersed with clumps of wood land, which diversified the prospect. In this district, the cliffs, which generally bordered one of the sides of the river, were covered with the largest and most beautiful cedars I ever beheld.

Open Parliament

STEWART NOT OPPOSED TO BROOKS.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

I should like to say through The Gazette that the statement in the Denver News, of Monday, to the effect that there is or ever has been any but the most cordial feeling between Hon. Franklin E. Brooks and myself, is as false as false can be. I not only should have supported him for renomination, but I feel that the people of the state are being deprived, by his refusal to again run for congress, of the services of an unusually qualified public servant. His record has not only impressed his constituents, but as I know, has commanded genuine respect in the body of which he has been a member.

CARRIAGE COMPANY FOR BRYAN.

From the Washington Star.

There is difficulty in agreeing upon the men to ride in the carriage with Mr. Bryan on the day of his reception in New York.

She was dying, and her heart-broken husband sat at the bedside. "Pat," she said, "I'm going to leave you, and I've a last request to make. Promise me that you'll ride in the carriage with mother to the grave."

The expression on his face showed hesitation, and she squeezed his hand and looked appealingly into his eyes. "Promise me," she repeated. "It is my last request."

That conquered him. "Biddy," he replied, "never has a man had a better wife than you have been to me. I have thanked God for you a thousand times. As it's your last request I cannot refuse—I'll do it. But let me be honest and say, that it will spoil the day for me."

The Democratic party has done a great deal for Mr. Bryan. He has had good reason to thank God a thousand times for the devotion of the organization. It has been faithful to him, passing all previous records, and is now renewing its passion. It has not lived in clover the while. On the contrary, it has borne privations for his sake. But to the real Bryanites the desert has been a paradise, as he was there.

Mr. Bryan appreciates this. He has been, and still is, an eloquent and a fond lover. His bearing toward his party is exceptionally attractive, and just now, while a little shy in certain matters, he gives every evidence of wanting to please. He listens to all who approach him. He sympathizes with all who are in difficulties. He wants to win the next battle, and he wants his party to be worthy of success.

For these reasons those who are in charge of the New York arrangements should be very careful in all they do. They should be particular not to offend their favorite in any way, or raise up any difficulties for him. In this matter of "carriage company" he will, of course, leave everything to them. He will, if they insist upon it, ride with men who are not agreeable to him. But they should not ask any such sacrifice at his hands. After planning for his reception on so generous a scale, and securing the promise of his heartiest co-operation, they should do nothing that would spoil the day for him.

TAKES ISSUE WITH THE MEDICINE MEN.

From the Newburg (Ore.) Enterprise.

In spite of the doctors, we believe that the strawberry does not run as many people crazy as does the lovely "peach" in a white shirtwaist.

IMITATION OF CONGRESS.

From the Washington (Iowa) Democrat.

We saw an awful quarrel between two old soldiers the other day. It occurred on the street. W. R. Beamer said to William Shannon, "What do you know about it? This isn't your put-in." Then Shannon said he knew it wasn't, and the trouble was over.

SMART MAINE YANKEE.

From the Kennebec Journal.

G. S. Gon last week moved his old barn off its basement back into the field, turned it half way around, and inside out, framed and raised his new barn, assisted the cooks, worked in the garden, and arrested fourteen peddlers. And it rained here most of the time.

AM SHADDEN'S WIGGLE-HORN COW.

From the McMinnville (Ore.) News-Reporter.

There was a sort of a cow on exhibition at the circus Monday, who also took part in the parade, whose horns were loose, and she could "wiggle" them. Last winter this paper said Am Shadden had a cow that could wiggle her horns, and there were some people who scoffed at the idea. The cow at the circus proves that a cow can enjoy that rare accomplishment.

EDITOR DRAWS THE DEAD LINE.

From the Mitchell (Ia.) Signs.

We have followed the plough, wielded the hoe, served time on the public grounds under an austere overseer, swept the backyard, worked the garden, churned the butter, washed the dishes, nursed the baby, and performed other various and sundry disagreeable tasks in our time without a murmur, but when it comes to cleaning streets under three lady bosses, excuse me, please. Three women to boss you! Great Caesar's ghost! Just the thought of such a catastrophe is enough to give a man the "buck-ague."

SHAKESPEARE IN OPERA.

The latest things in operas in London town these days
Are playful little parodies on Mr. Shakespeare's plays,
They put on "Hamlet" with a ghost who does a song and dance
And springs a moldy gag or two, while all the chorus chants;
And Hamlet, on beholding him, lifts up a lively clog
And says: "Is that you, father dear, or just a London fog?"

When old King Lear goes maundering across the canvas lea,
His graceless daughter winks and says: Now, don't you Lear at me!"
And Kent exclaims when through the storm he hears his monarch shout:
"It's pretty windy, ain't it, King, to take those whiskers out?"
And when his subjects hail the king, the old man says, complaining:
"Away with you! How dare you, knave, to hail when I am reigning?"

When dark Othello from the wars comes double-shuffling back,
Iago says: "I'm scared of him because he looks so black."
And Desdemona's stifled while that villain calmly smokes,
Remarking philosophically the while: "I fake, she chokes!"
And when Othello stabs himself, Iago, with a roar,
Shouts out: "There's always room where you are bound for just one Moor!"

When Caesar gets the gleaming knives he's circled by a bunch
Of show girls, while lean Cassius mourns: "'Twas too much Roman punch!"
Macbeth beholds the aged crones dance round their bubbling pitch,
And asks them, with a grin of glee: "Now, tell me, which is witch?"
They're turning crowds away, they say, and down by Avon's wave,
It's said, the bard is turning, too—he's turning in his grave. —Montreal Star.

DISCRIMINATION IN WORDS.

Being a Warning Against Carelessness in the Use of Language.

From the Kansas City Star.

If ignorance were the excuse for some of the common mistakes in the use of words our public schools would offer a possible ultimate solution of the problem. But, as most words that are misused are so treated not on account of ignorance, but through carelessness, the remedy is not quite clear.

One of the things that makes the "judicious grieve" is the misuse of the words audience and spectator. One need have only a faint idea of the derivation of words to know that an audience assembles to hear, while spectators go to see. Yet we not infrequently come upon the statement that the audience at a football game was composed of thousands of persons. Ayers in "The Verbalist," a book of great value to lovers of precise English, discusses these words as follows:

"An auditor is a person that listens; a spectator is one that looks. An auditorium is a place where people assemble to listen to something; a spectatorium is a place where people assemble to see, to look at something. Those that assemble in an auditorium are auditors, and constitute, collectively, an audience; those that assemble in a spectatorium are spectators. An audience, then, is an assemblage of hearers, not of spectators; yet we hear of an audience having been large at a prize fight, a game of ball, at a boat race, and so on."

The Century dictionary distinguishes between the words in this manner:

"A person is said to be a spectator at a show, a bull fight, a wrestling match; one of the audience at a lecture, a concert, the theater, and one of the congregation at church."

There is a confusion in the words partly and partially that may not jar the nerves of many, but there be a few who do protest.

"It is only partially done," is a sentence discussed by Ayers in this connection. "This use of the adverb partially is sanctioned by high authority, but that does not make it correct. A thing done in part is partly, not partially done." It may be added that a thing partially done is done with favorable prejudice, but a thing partly done is not wholly completed.

"But partially, for not totally, only in part, was, in some connections, good English to Sir Thomas Brown; and from the educated sense of euphony which distinguishes modern ears it has been well-nigh completely resuscitated. There are cases in which partly, if substituted for it, would affect many persons of nice perceptions much after the manner of a wrong note in music."

"I had a chance to get that," said a man, speaking of a tract of land. He meant that he had an opportunity to get it. If it had been put up in a lottery he might have bought a chance to get it, but as it was offered to him at a price he had an opportunity to get it.

Occasion is given by some dictionaries as a synonym for opportunity and is distinguished from it by the Century as follows:

"An occasion falls in one's way, whether desired or not; as, I had occasion to speak with him; an opportunity is desired, yet comes naturally when it is obtained; as, I never got a good opportunity to explain the mistake. We find, take, seek occasion; we seek, desire, find, embrace an opportunity." A chance is a risk; hazard; a balanced possibility of gain or loss; particularly in gaining; it involves uncertainty.

It offends many givers of gifts to learn from others that they have donated them. This thoughtless offense should be spared those of generous impulses. Although Mr. Carnegie has perforce not included either word in the list of those whose spelling he would reform, no doubt he, being something of a purist, as it were, would much prefer giving, bestowing or presenting a library to donating it. When his attention is directed toward the use of words instead of their spelling, he will surely take up the word donate first of all. Ayres says:

"This word, which is defined as meaning to give, to contribute, is looked upon by most champions of good English as being an abomination. Donation is also little used by careful writers. 'Donate,' says Mr. Gould, 'may be dismissed with this remark. So long as its place is occupied by give, bestow, grant, present, etc., it is not needed; and it should be unceremoniously bowed out, or thrust out, of the seat into which it has temporarily intruded.'

"The word is a good deal [illegible] by persons that are not careful in their speech, and it is quite possible that it will never be less used than it is now."

It may surprise many who use words extravagantly and not carefully that in attempting to describe flashy red neckties or thrilling incidents as lurid, they have been wide of the mark. Lurid is in no case brilliant or flashy, but, according to most dictionaries, means pale, wan, ghastly, having the character of a light which does not show the colors of objects, combining light and gloom. There may be lurid neckties, but they are not on display in the windows these days.

HATS OFF TO JUDGE WOFFORD.

From the Washington Post.

The fact that we do not personally know Judge Wofford, of Kansas City, is for us a matter of sincere regret. He is a magistrate deserving of all honor and esteem. In one edition of Tuesday, the 26th instant, appeared a special dispatch conveying the remarks of this wise, benign, and righteous judge, and we commend them to the thoughtful perusal of our readers.

The case was that of a wretched negro, Wallace Cooper, who had killed another negro, James Taylor, in the course of an altercation. Taylor enjoyed—literally enjoyed—the reputation of a "bad man." He had previously killed two men, and was, naturally, the envy and admiration of his kind. In an evil hour he ran against Wallace Cooper in a livery stable somewhere, and right there he lost his life and cut his once proud record short. Cooper was arrested, tried, and, of course, convicted. There was no doubt as to the circumstances. The murderer himself resorted to no subterfuges or denials. Conviction followed—unanimous and cheerful conviction—and on Monday the miserable wretch appeared in court to hear his sentence. Then it happened that Judge Wofford immortalized himself in these unusual, yet most admirable words:

"Well," said the judge, "you're guilty of murder, all right, but you're a poor, ignorant black man. And I don't want to hang you. You have no friends. You have no one to plead that you were insane when you killed this man. If I sentence you to hang you will hang just as sure as there's a God in heaven. There will not be a whole lot of women circulating petitions to save your neck. There will not be a lot of fool men writing letters to the governor to save you. No one will send you flowers. You'll just be forgotten until the day set for your hanging, and then they'll hang you. I'll sentence you to thirty years in the penitentiary."

Poor, abject, friendless, without native intelligence or training, no doubt ignorant of the very meaning of home and the family circle, this ragged and forlorn wretch stood at the bar dumbly though perhaps vaguely expecting the sentence of death. Only twenty years old, a waif who had never known sympathy or the guidance of good precept and example, he was the mere mathematical result of conditions over which he had no control—the victim of an environment he neither created nor could understand. It is to Judge Wofford's eternal honor that he felt for this unhappy outcast, realized his helplessness and irresponsibility, and lifted up the hand of mercy.

Across the fruitful distances, peopled by happy, prosperous, and enlightened millions, which smile and burgeon between Washington and Kansas City, we send to Judge Wofford the message of our overflowing admiration.

HORSESHOES AND LUCK.

Right Way and Wrong Way to Invoke Goddess of Fortune.

There is a right way and a wrong in the picking up of a horseshoe. I was walking with a countrybred boy along a Somerset lane and saw one lying in the crumbling summer rut. "There is a horseshoe," said I. The lad sprang forward, but stopped suddenly before his fingers touched the iron. "But I won't pick it up," said he, "or I shall spoil your luck." It may perhaps have been only a point of etiquette, but he assured me that a horseshoe of my finding could bring luck neither to him nor to me if he touched it before me.

The origin of this superstition, says the London Evening Standard, now lingering chiefly as a saying and a jest, is perhaps older than the horseshoe, and has nothing whatever to do with it. It was from the influence of the new moon that good was expected, and still there are soon who turn the money in their pockets when they see her in the sky. The early horseshoe was a simple crescent, and the superstition has lingered around an object that at first was only a convenient symbol.

It was to the protection of moon goddess, therefore, that the householder first trusted when he kept the witch out of his dwelling by hanging a horseshoe on the door. Neither spell nor malignant wish, nor the power of the evil eye could cross the threshold in the presence of her symbol. Even the pixies, who brought a certain whimsical merriment into their practical jokes, were no good in the face of that. Cheated out of their nocturnal rides they might as well retire underground at once if a horseshoe barred their entry to the stable.

For these troublesome elves in days gone by had a way of working the cattle by night for their own amusement, and when the good man came in the morning he found the poor beasts "all terrified like, an' out in a lather o' sweat." And they had even a worse trick than this. They would get at the good wife's vat and wantonly spoil the brew. To prevent this she drew with her finger two hearts and a cross upon the mash, and thus the brew was saved. Whether crescent or cross, no matter. The pixies would slink away abashed by the sign of it.

To this day there are horseshoes on the doors of many cottages in quiet villages. Doubtless the cottagers do not put them up for a whim, or in the same half jocular half serious spirit, yet with a secret satisfaction, too, in which so many of us perform obsolete practices "just for luck." And why not I, who find a last delight in its forgotten significance?

It was rusty, with a crooked horse nail still hanging in one of the holes. There are some who think there is virtue in the rust. But that is nonsense. I polished mine until it was bright as the silver moon, and indeed, might almost be mistaken for the metal sacred to Diana. There is a right way and a wrong in putting up the horseshoe on your door. One thing is thoroughly established; if you turn it upside down it cannot hold the luck.

And where ought it to be placed? The old world folk often nailed it on the threshold. The growing moon has her horns always toward the left, and only on the wane does she point them to the right. I would have this a true crescent, waxing every day.

TALLEST MAN IN THE ARMY.

The distinction of being the tallest man in the United States army belongs to Ernest D. Peck, a first lieutenant in the engineer corps. He is 6 feet 7½ inches in height. Lieutenant Peck is a native of Wisconsin and was graduated from the Oshkosh high school. He entered the military academy at West Point in 1897 and upon his graduation in 1901 was a "star," thus entitling him to the select army of the service, the corps of engineers. Lieutenant Peck is now on duty at Yellowstone park, Wyoming, and has supervised the building of a military road known as Peck's Pike. He is called Pike's Peak by his comrades in the service.

APPEAL TAKEN IN SHEMWELL CASE

DEFENDANT IN TWELVE THOUSAND DOLLAR LAWSUIT HAD $89 IN EXCESS OF HIS RIGHTFUL SHARE.

With the victory of the plaintiffs in the case of W. D. Shemwell et al. vs. J. H. Shemwell et al., for possession of the $12,000 estate of the deceased mother, the suit is taken from the district court and will be appealed by J. H. Shemwell et al., to the state supreme court.

The case has been in the district court for nearly two years. J. H. Shemwell claimed possession of the ranch, which lies east of this city, on the ground that it belonged to him personally, and not to his mother. His brother, W. D. Shemwell, claimed that the property belonged to the mother, and should be divided among the 12 heirs.

Judge L. W. Cunningham of the district court supported the plaintiff in his contention, some time ago, and appointed a commission of three well-known men to divide the property equitably. J. H. Shemwell objected to the apportionment of his share, and another commission, comprised of Mayor Link of Fountain, and two prominent ranchmen of the county, were appointed to ascertain the accuracy of the previous adjustment.

The second commission yesterday reported to the district court that the apportionment of J. H. Shemwell as returned by the former appraisers, exceeded his rightful share by $25. Shemwell's attorneys thereupon withdrew their objections, and at the same time announced that the case would be appealed to the supreme court.

Another complication has further muddled the various phases of the litigation. E. J. Eaton, president of the Colorado Savings bank of this city, now holds a tax title to the land in question, and W. D. Shemwell and associates claim fraudulent collusion between J. H. Shemwell, Eaton and others, who are alleged to have allowed the land to be sold for taxes, in order that it might be regained and eventually returned to J. H. Shemwell.

Judge Cunningham last night said that he would not try the case, "in any of its phases," because of intimated objection by the defendant. Two separate issues are involved—the legality of the tax title and the right of J. H. Shemwell as sole heir to the twelfth owner of the property.

Coffee Rising in Price

The Brazilian government is supporting the coffee planters by extending them money to enable them to withhold their coffee from the market so as to advance the price.

As a result the coffee market is soaring higher and higher, and the only outlet possible for the set price package coffee is to substitute an inferior quality to make up increased cost.

We purchased a short time ago two carloads of coffee, and with other purchases which anticipated the advance, we are able to still deliver the superior qualities for the same money. It will now pay you more than ever to buy your coffee here.

WILL FILE BIG DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST THE "SUGAR TRUST"

Keystone Mercantile Company Preparing to Bring Action in the District Court, in Addition to Federal Court Criminal Action.

A damage suit for a large sum, coupled with a petition for an injunction restraining the state and city wholesale grocers associations from their alleged illegal pooling of prices, will be filed in the district court here by the Keystone Mercantile company, in addition to the criminal charges to be brought against them in the federal court at Denver, according to Senator Arthur Confforth, attorney for the Keystone company.

Senator Confforth said last night that he was awaiting the return to Denver of United States District Attorney Earl Cranston before filing an information in the federal court. The organizations are alleged to have violated the Sherman antitrust law and the interstate commerce law.

The trouble originated through the alleged attempt of the two organizations to control and raise the price of sugar. The Keystone grocery, in defiance of the trust, sold sugar at the former price, and claims that all wholesale grocers of the state were ordered to decline all orders received from the Keystone, in an endeavor to bring the latter to terms.

The Keystone last week retaliated by purchasing 15 tons of sugar from a Texas jobber, parading the same through the streets to its warehouse.

COLORADO CITY FOR NEW FACTORY

COLORADO CITY GO-AHEAD CLUB WILL ENDEAVOR TO RAISE REQUIRED BONUS.

Colorado City is to have a jam manufacturing plant if the efforts of the Go-Ahead club are successful. At a meeting of the club in the city hall last night, a committee consisting of Mayor John F. Murray, City Attorney J. P. Jackson, I. A. Foote, C. D. Taylor and Ernest Waycott, was appointed to solicit subscriptions for $10,000 worth of the stock of the proposed manufacturing company.

Superintendent C. W. Cunningham, and F. W. Mosher, chief pattern designer for the Cascade Manufacturing company, of Waterloo, Ia., promoters of the proposition, offer to incorporate a company capitalized at $25,000, if the citizens of Colorado City will subscribe $10,000 of the stock and furnish the site and the buildings, or they agree to incorporate at a larger amount on the condition that the citizens subscribe sufficient stock to pay for the site and buildings. A site for the buildings which has already been offered and which is acceptable to Mr. Cunningham and the members of the committee appointed last night, is situate just north of the Midland tracks between Fifth and Sixth streets. It consists of two acres and is owned by Anthony Bott.

A meeting of the committee will be held this morning to outline their campaign. In an interview last night, Mayor Murray said:

"I am sure that the construction of a plant, such as Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Mosher propose to erect, would be a great help to Colorado City. Their proposition is fair and I believe they are acting in good faith. All the members of the Go-Ahead club are working for the proposition and I believe we will succeed."

The plant is to be used for the manufacture of heating stoves and an apparatus for heating water, and will employ at the start, about 50 experienced men. Their wages will range from $3 to $5 per day.

The Rev. C. S. Seltzer, pastor of the M. E. church, Colorado City, who has been visiting his sister in the northeastern part of the state for the last ten days, has returned home.

Disciples of Gutenberg, Caxton and Franklin Own The Town

Given the Glad Hand of Hospitality by Mayor, County Officials, Civic Organizations, and the Local Brethren. Delegates to the Fifty-second Annual Assembly of the I. T. U. Begin Greatest Convention in the Organization's History.

TRUSTEE SHEPARD MAY BE REMOVED

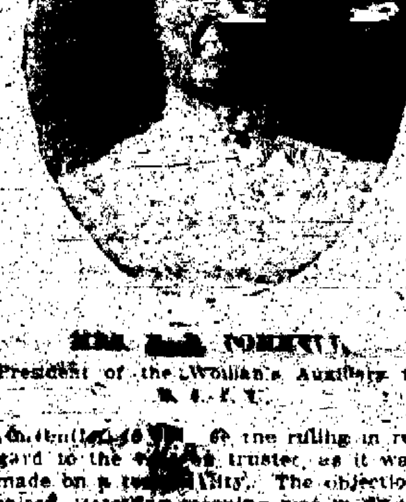

NO. 6 RAISES OBJECTION TO SEATING OF BOSTON DELEGATION, TO DISPOSE OF TECHNICALITY.

Behind an objection made by Edward F. Drackert, one of the delegates from New York union No. 6, to the seating of the Boston delegation at yesterday morning's session of the International Typographical union, is an attempt to secure the unseating of L. C. Shepard as a member of the board of trustees of the Union Printers home in favor of John Armstrong, of Toronto.

At the annual election of the officers for the International Typographical union held by referendum in March, the vote of the Boston union for home trustee was counted out on the ground that it was two days late in sending its per capita tax to Indianapolis. This gave the election to Mr. Shepard by two votes.

Members of the New York delegation declare that if the vote is illegal for a home trustee, it is illegal for all I. T. U. officers, including delegates to the convention. The change in the vote for the other offices would make no difference, however, except in the case of Mr. Shepard, although if this contention were sustained it would result in the unseating of the Boston delegation to the convention, as well as of Frank K. Foster as a delegate to the American Federation of Labor.

New York, however, does not want the delegation unseated. It wants the contention [illegible] in the ruling in regard to the [illegible] trustee, as it was made on a technicality. The objection raised yesterday morning was made to get the question before the convention. It was made immediately after the reading of the credentials by Secretary Brainwood, but was ruled out by President Lynch as being made at the wrong time. Mr. Drackert announces, however, that he will bring the question up again in another form.

MRS. [illegible] DONNELL, President of the Woman's Auxiliary to I. T. U.

COST OF BATTLE IS TWO MILLION

I. T. U. IS DETERMINED TO CONTINUE STRIVING FOR THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY—MEETING YESTERDAY.

The eight-hour fight, which has already cost the International Typographical union over $2,000,000 in money and has entailed a strike of over ten months, is to be prosecuted on lines more vigorous than before. Interest in the present convention centers around the eight-hour fight. On every hand there is the hopeful belief that the strike will be completely won before the end of the year, and the determination never to give up the struggle.

The eight-hour committee, appointed at yesterday morning's session by President Lynch, held its first meeting and perfected its organization yesterday afternoon, with George J. Knott of Chicago, as chairman; John E. Pendergast, of Detroit, secretary; Thomas J. Quinn, of Albany, [illegible] Daly of Portland, and F. W. Smith, of Cincinnati, are the other members.

The committee expects to hold conferences with presidents and members of unions now on the firing line with a view of learning the status of the strike from first hand sources.

According to the latest figures given out by the executive committee, out of a total of 46,225 members, 38,960 are working the eight-hour day. Of the remainder, 2,506 are working nine hours under contracts not yet expired, while 4,709 are on strike. The fight at present centers in Omaha, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

A meeting of the presidents and accredited representatives of unions actively engaged in the strike was held in the Antlers ball room last night lasting until early this morning. This meeting was called by President James M. Lynch to obtain clear information on the progress and exact status of the strike. The meeting was in the nature of an executive session and its report will be made public at the sessions of the convention Thursday or Friday.

EX-DELEGATES PLAN A NEW ORGANIZATION

Ex-delegates in attendance at the International Woman's auxiliary to the I. T. U. are planning to organize an ex-delegates association and definite action probably will be taken during the week. The new organization will be formed on lines similar to the auxiliary and all auxiliaries who have been delegates to any of the conventions of the order are eligible for membership.

TYPOS TO MEET IN SPRINGS EVERY FOURTH OR FIFTH YEAR

Texan to Whom Colorado's Charms Are Irresistible, Launches Movement to Make Craftsmen Acquainted With Their Own Great Institution—"The Home."

A well-defined movement has been launched for holding the annual convention of the International Typographical union in Colorado Springs every fourth or fifth year, for the purpose of giving every printer in the United States and Canada an opportunity to become better acquainted with the Union Printers home.

Action on the question will be taken at the present convention. A resolution was presented to Secretary Bramwood yesterday by Mayo Paretti, delegate from Galveston union No. 23, and was referred to the committee on resolutions, by whom it will probably be returned to the convention on Thursday or Friday with recommendations.

The resolution also proposes that unions numbering 50 or more members be entitled to two delegates to every convention that is held in this city, and that in view of the fact that the conventions would be held here so frequently and that nature has so generously endowed the Pike's Peak region, it is proposed that the expensive entertainment features on the part of the local union and the citizens of Colorado Springs be eliminated. The movement has met with much encouragement.

"It would be a grand thing," said Mr. Paretti, "I am one of the printers who never saw the Union Printers home until I came here for this convention. I never realized what a grand institution it is. I want every printer in the United States and Canada to see it and to understand how it has become the grandest humanitarian institution in the world that is maintained by honest workingmen and women.

"There is only one way to get the printers here, and that is to hold the convention here every four or five years. It not only draws the delegates and ex-delegates, but brings many others who come as visitors. And in order to give more people a chance, I think that a special measure should be passed giving the small unions greater representation at the Colorado Springs conventions only.

"It would, of course, be an imposition to ask the citizens of Colorado Springs and the local union to entertain a convention every four years, as lavishly as they are entertaining us, but nature has done enough for Colorado Springs so that everybody could find plenty to amuse and entertain themselves.

"I am going to make a determined effort to get the measure through this year, but anyway I am coming back to Colorado Springs for my vacation every summer."

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY TO THE I. T. U. IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

for unqualified good. It has tended to cleanse our politics. It has, perhaps, tended somewhat toward the raising of the character of candidates for public office.

"While women are eligible for all offices in this state from the highest office even down to the office of mayor, they have thus far, either wisely or unwisely, [illegible] nothing to secure [illegible] positions. The majority of women in this state while they do not take an active part in politics, vote for the right."

At the close of the mayor's address, Mrs. E. D. Donnell of Greensburg, Ind., president of the Woman's auxiliary, was introduced, and presented with a gavel made from the wood of the first tree planted on the Home grounds, by Bishop MacLaren at the time of the dedication of the home. On the gold bands encircling the handle and head of the gavel are the words:

"Presented to Mrs. Ed. D. Donnell, President of the Woman's International Auxiliary to the International Typographical Union, 52nd Annual Convention, Aug. 13 to 18, 1906, Colorado Springs. From Tree Grown on Grounds of Union Printers Home."

The following officers were present: Mrs. E. D. Donnell of Greensburg, Ind., president; Mrs. N. W. Smith of Lincoln, Neb., second vice-president; Mrs. John D. Kane of Louisville, Ky., third vice-president; Mrs. A. W. Bowen of Washington, D. C., chaplain; Mrs. J. P. Stanton of Syracuse, N. Y., guide; Mrs. Charles E. McKee of Indianapolis, Ind., secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. D. McDougall of Toronto, Canada, first vice-president, and Mrs. John A. Aul of Nashville, Tenn., fourth vice-president were absent.

Committees appointed:

Mrs. Charles Hertenstein, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. J. H. Konelsman, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. S. B. Woodrow, Cincinnati; Mrs. Jennie Andrew, Pueblo, and Mrs. R. L. White, Atlanta, Ga., laws committee. Mrs. Edward Buchanan, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. O. F. Pennybaker, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mrs. W. C. Norton, Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. J. S. Edmunds, Terre Haute, Ind., and Mrs. H. A. Thompson, Toronto, committee on credentials. Miss Laura B. Gordon, D. C.; Mrs. J. W. Foley, Denver; Mrs. D. S. Gilmore, Colorado Springs; Mrs. May G. Griswell, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. Bemis Heath, Chicago, Ill., auditing committee. Mrs. W. W. Jolly, Houston, Tex.; Mrs. J. E. Lee, Evansville, Ind.; Mrs. C. P. Kingsbury, St. Joseph, Mo., and Mrs. W. E. Elmer, Syracuse, N. Y., committee on resolutions. Mrs. P. J. Boyle, Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. C. W. Lichtidner, Milwaukee; Mrs. J. O. [illegible]; Mrs. Margaret Irvine, Bradford, Penn.; Mrs. [illegible]; Mrs. E. D. Donnelly, Greensburg, Ind., label committee.

Mrs. H. A. Thompson, of Auxiliary No. 42, Toronto, presented a beautiful autograph quilt to the Union Printers home. A brief response, appropriate to the occasion, was made by Miss Deacon.

An invitation to be the guests of the Denver Woman's auxiliary on Saturday, was received from Mrs. Nellie Chandlers Smith, president of the Denver auxiliary.

Probably the most important business to be disposed of by the present convention, will be the label question. A resolution will be presented tomorrow which will pledge the members of the auxiliary to buy no materials not bearing the union label. This action has already been taken by a number of the auxiliaries. The question of death benefits will also come up for discussion.

Today the delegates and visiting ex-delegates are taking in the sights in the Cripple Creek district. Business sessions will be held tomorrow at 9:30 a. m., and 2 p. m. On Friday, the recently elected officers will be installed as follows:

Mrs. A. W. Bowen, Washington, D. C., president; Mrs. D. McDougall, Toronto; Mrs. W. R. Ogden, Cincinnati, O., Mrs. Charles Carter, Colorado Springs, and Mrs. George Frazier, Baltimore, vice-presidents; Mrs. C. E. McKee, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Bort Cox, Omaha, Neb., chaplain; Mrs. Neal Crowley, Pueblo, guide.

"WHO HUNG THIS COPY ON MY HOOK," ASKED JOLLY HOLLAND

R. L. Holland, representing the board of county commissioners, spoke in a happy vein in his welcoming address to the printers.

"I don't know what the custom in your town is," he said, "but here we always take a drink before beginning to speak," and with that he poured out a glass of water.

"I am impressed with the progress you have made in the last 45 years. When I was in the business you couldn't find a printer who was willing to work eight hours without kicking.

"I really don't know why I am here. I am anxious to see who hung this copy on my hook. I don't know whether it has been edited, whether the style is up or down, or whether it is to be hand or machine set, but inasmuch as I am an office holder, I suppose it is machine set.

"As an evidence of the fact that we are awfully glad to see you, you ought not to be surprised to be welcomed from any source. Precinct 13 of Ward 23 has adopted resolutions in your honor. Also the Sons of Rest and other patriotic organizations are preparing for a perpetual holiday during your stay."

During Mr. Holland's address, he made several personal allusions to their officers which made a home run hit with the typos.

NO SECRECY TO BE MAINTAINED

PRESIDENT LYNCH CONTRASTS SESSIONS OF PRESENT CONVENTION WITH THAT OF THE OPPOSITION.

James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, in his response, declared that the sessions of the convention will be open, in marked contrast to those of the United Typothetae of America, against which organization the I. T. U. is conducting its eight-hour fight. He said:

"It is a distinct pleasure for me to respond to the welcome today. Colorado Springs and the International Typographical union are closely associated. For many years we have maintained in this city an institution, the only one of its kind in the world, the Union Printers home. That institution has received the support and appreciation of the citizens of Colorado Springs. It is only natural, therefore, that they should extend to us, this morning, their hospitality.

Four weeks ago it was my privilege to attend a convention held in an eastern city, at which there were present about 30. The sessions of that gathering were held behind closed doors. Nothing was permitted to escape.

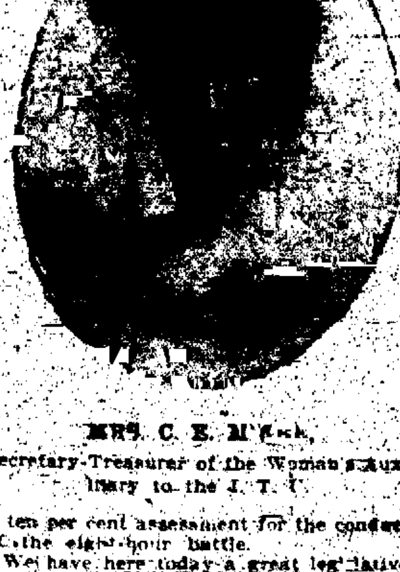

What a difference between the convention of the International Typographical union, called to order this morning, and the convention of the United Typothetae of America held in Buffalo at that time!

Here there are some hundreds of men and women who have come hundreds, yea, thousands of miles, to attend this meeting, notwithstanding the fact that in the last six months, besides the levy for support of the home, there has been levied a ten per cent assessment for the conduct of the eight-hour battle.

We have here today a great legislative gathering of 250 delegates, besides many hundreds of visitors.

We will transact our business in the open, knowing that the cause for which we fight is just, and not fearing the criticism of those who watch the deliberations, nor the public expressions that follow afterward.

I can conclude only by expressing the thanks of the gathering, delegates and visitors, for the greeting extended this morning, and can only hope that the deliberations of this convention will create a favorable impression on the part of the citizens of Colorado Springs, citizens who are all friends of the Union Printers home, and who, we hope, will, when this convention adjourns, all be friends of the great International Typographical union.

MRS. C. E. McKEE, Secretary-Treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary to the I. T. U.

AUXILIARY MAY ERECT A HOME

MOVEMENT FOR AN INSTITUTION FOR I. T. U. WOMEN, SIMILAR TO PRINTERS HOME, MAY BE STARTED.

Action regarding the erection of a home or an annex to the Union Printers home in Colorado Springs for aged and destitute wives of union printers may be taken during the present convention of the Woman's Auxiliary to the I. T. U.

For some time several of the auxiliaries have been agitating the question of the erection of a home by the auxiliary similar to the Union Printers home. Among the sites proposed is Colorado Springs, which is considered most favorably from the fact that the Union Printers home is located here.

Some of the delegates favor the construction of an annex to the home. Others, however, say that the time for the erection of such an institution is not ripe. They believe that the expense would be too great for the present strength of the organization.

EVERY "SLUG" FROM ONE TOWN IS HERE

Brush, Colorado, holds the distinction of being the only town under the I. T. U. in the United States and Canada to send all of its union printers to the convention. Thomas W. Adams, an "ex" to Syracuse in 1894, and at present a member of Denver union No. 49, who now is proprietor of the Morgan County Republican, is a part of the delegation. Dick Shields, of the Morgan County Tribune, is the other part. When five more union printers come to town, Adams and Shields announce they will organize a union.

VICKSBURG WANTS THE NEXT.

Vicksburg is out in a determined effort to land the 1907 convention of the I. T. U. Its campaign began yesterday when M. F. McAuliffe, Jr., delegate from the Mississippi city, began distributing literature and buttonholing delegates to expatiate to them the claims of Vicksburg for the next convention.

Mr. McAuliffe will present, on Wednesday or Thursday, an official invitation from Vicksburg Typographical union No. [illegible], the mayor and city council, the board of trade and the Vicksburg Business league to make the metropolis of the state of Mississippi the 1907 gathering place.

Hot Springs is still in the race.

MAYOR WELCOMES TYPOS TO SPRINGS

"WITHOUT ART PRESERVATIVE ALL FRUITS OF ALL THE LABORIOUS AGES WOULD SOON BE DUST."

Mayor Henry C. Hall, in welcoming the I. T. U. convention on behalf of the city, yesterday, delivered a masterly address, one that called forth repeated applause in appreciation from his hearers. He said:

It was a happy choice which has brought you together again here, at a season when throughout the east wanderers are responding to the call of "Old Home day." For you come to old friends. You come to your "home," the home which your economies have raised and maintained as a haven for those of you with whom life has gone hard. This refuge for failing health or years is your honor and our pride. To every man of the fifty thousand enrolled in your union, Colorado Springs is a city set apart from all others because on its borders stands the "Printers home."

Your craft is not old as crafts go. There were carpenters, smiths and masons before the flood, and yet the world waited until four hundred and fifty years ago for Gutenberg to devise movable type and start his press. Four hundred and fifty years. The Romans held Britain as long as that and passed like a breath or a dream. Think of it. Since man was, through all the countless ages, he has been seeking to perpetuate the thoughts that came to him. By folk-song and folk-lore, by picture, carving, writing, he has sought to preserve and hand out and on to others what seemed to him worth while. For man can perhaps keep a secret, but he cannot keep an idea. It will out. And yet until four centuries before your order was founded he had never discovered the use of type. Like the hero of Bret Harte's condensed novel, "For seventeen long years he languished in prison. Suddenly a thought struck him. He opened the window and got out."

It is true that the centuries since have marked an advance which eclipses all that went before. Columbus had not sailed. India was still Indian. The English speech was confined to England. The Reformation, the revival of learning, constitutional government, chemistry, steam and electricity as applied to the arts, all were yet to come. To your craft, more than to any other, that advance has been due. For the demand you meet is universal.

We welcome you then, as representatives of the art preservative, without which all the fruits of all the laborious ages would soon be dust.

But, you are more. In our age and race and land of organization it was inevitable that ... of your craft should organize for your common welfare. This nation formed by union of independent states, the states themselves, our political parties, the churches, the colleges, the societies, the clubs, the corporations, the labor unions, the citizens alliances, all are the outcome of this ... to get together for the common weal. The ... of the union ... through them all, and by ... the world's work, in America at least, is largely done.

To all alike we put the test, are ... lawful ends by lawful means? ... are they ... If so, then they are beneficial.

Tried by this test your union can ... comparison. The principle of arbitration so wisely invoked by your honored president, and so frankly accepted by the American Newspaper Publishers association, has freed the newspaper world from trouble and loss both of local friction and disputes. Your record is that of faith kept, and that mightiest force in human affairs, the vox populi, which is the voice of God, will always support an organization that keeps faith, just as it will always condemn an organization that clutches the right hand of fellowship to the red hand of murder.

You are endeavoring now by lawful means to shorten the hours and a ... the ... of those of your brethren whose work is not in newspaper offices. From what little I know of conditions and the ... study I did you ...

Yet ... in a city where the eight-hour day is universal, where ... of hours has brought in its train no decrease of pay, but in ... cases an increase, and where the compensation and the condition of workmen are not surpassed by those in any city of our land.

You ... therefore among friends, who accept without question what you are struggling for elsewhere and who welcome you as the authorized delegates of the International Typographical union.

Thus far I have talked to you as printers, as union printers, let me talk to you now as men. For whatever his calling or affiliations, a man is first of all and last of all a man. Is your vision bounded, are your energies cramped by the interests of your organization, or do you look beyond them to your fellow man? "We be of one blood, ye and I," cried Mowgli in the jungle to beast and snake and bird, and in the jungle passed safely amid good-will. The master word of the jungle is the master word among men, "We be of one blood, ye and I." What concerns you concerns me. The life worth living is the life of service; the worthiest life is that of the fullest and widest service, not merely to one's kin or tribe or union, but to one's fellow man. The essence of life I learned years ago beside a grave. It is to be simple, to be true and to lend a hand. Not to get, but to be, to do, to do for others, that is the essence of life. With it, life is worthy; without it life is unworthy, although gold and fame and power drape it in glittering robes. If I have a message that is my message take it home with you—teach it to your children. In every hamlet on the continent, let there be men, who are undismayed by the flaunting of the world's gods, and who stand for the simple, the true, the kind. Let us have some prophets; let us look past the treasures that perish in the using to the treasures that are laid up in Heaven.

In one way at least you have recognized that "oneness of blood." In crossing national boundaries, and I greet with especial warmth those of you who dwell under the British flag.

Gentlemen of the convention—may your stay among us be pleasant and profitable, may sagacity and moderation guide your counsels and may nothing ever happen to impair the cordial and friendly relations which exist between our people and your Printers home.

On behalf of the city and the citizens of Colorado Springs I bid you welcome and hope that soon we may welcome you again.

LEASE ON GOLD DIRT IS GOOD PROPOSITION

GEORGETOWN, Colo., Aug. 13.—Howard Peck and Henry Craycroft, who are operating a block of ground in the Gold Dirt under lease, have a paying proposition. A fourteen-inch streak of solid smelting ore is being followed which contains average values of 4.60 ounces in gold to the ton. When these lessees went to work it was decided to drive towards the hanging wall, as the former lessees had concentrated their efforts in following the footwall. After driving for less than ten feet the boys made the discovery and are now getting the material ready for the inauguration of shipments. Stoping will soon be started and all efforts to be made to extract and send to market a good tonnage.

FRIDAY COMPANY FINDS GOOD THREE-FOOT VEIN

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 13.—The Friday Mining and Leasing company, operating on the Friday claim of the White City G. N. Co., adjacent to the Hoosier, on Tenderfoot hill, has opened up at a depth of 26 feet in the new shaft, a three-foot vein, from which assays taken clear across, run one ounce.

The shaft is in the solid only 12 feet, and the values are getting better as sinking progresses. It is the intention of the lessees to sink the new shaft to a depth of 100 feet. It is believed the ore will pay for the development work.

... MAY LOSE THE SIGHT OF BOTH EYES

CRIPPLE CREEK, Aug. 13.—Robert G. Eckl..., a miner employed on the Mary McKinney, met with an accident early this morning, which may cost him the sight of both eyes. He was in the act of lighting a cap to a fuse, when the cap exploded. His left hand was badly lacerated and being in a stooping posture, the explosion also took effect in his eyes.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Colorado Springs Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs, from distressing kidney ills, thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Colorado Springs who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Colorado Springs kidney sufferers.

Mrs. E. P. Kennedy, of 26 North Willow street, says: "In the month of June, 1899, I gave for publication a testimonial about Doan's Kidney Pills after they had cured me of pain in my back. I cannot add anything to my original statement, except this: That what I said was absolutely true, and during the years elapsed since, I have not required the use of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine. When Doan's Kidney Pills cured in my case, it was permanent. I have since recommended them to others."

Plenty more proof like this from Colorado Springs people. Call at D. Y. Butcher Drug Co.'s store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

PRICES RISE TO A HIGHER LEVEL

BULK OF DAY'S BUSINESS LARGELY CONGESTED IN FEW SPECULATIVE FAVORITES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—There was a moderate, but persistent absorption of stocks in today's market, which had the ultimate effect of lifting prices to a higher average level. The movement was halting and irregular in the early part of the day, and had to contend with some speculative considerations which were given an unfavorable tenor in the current opinion. The bulk of the day's business was largely congested in a few speculative favorites, but those of this class which have been most effective in their sympathetic influence on the general market were again brought into prominence, with the result that the general price movement came into accord with them.

St. Paul, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific have demonstrated their capacity many times recently to carry the list with them. The buying today, which proved impressive, was calculated to convey the impression of accumulation by well informed insiders as to coming developments regarding those stocks. The rumors current, which attempted to give shape to the expected plan for financing the Pacific coast extension of the St. Paul, to the expected dividend increase on Union Pacific and to the inaugural dividend of Southern Pacific, fixed quite explicitly the four per cent rate.

An unsettling influence in the early dealings was the break in Brooklyn Rapid Transit, which was caused by the judicial decision against the company's right to collect double fare to Coney Island, and to the disorders which resulted yesterday from the determination to collect the double fares. The Interborough Metropolitan stocks moved strongly away from the Brooklyn stock, influenced by the statistics for traffic for the last quarter over the Manhattan Borough lines and by the reports of earnings from Albany.

The stiffness of the call money rate proved a restraint on the early speculation, and this was not relieved at once by the news that the bulk of the $3,500,000 of gold arrivals in London has been secured for New York. The effect of the engagement on the London market was so pronounced as to give warning of possible unfavorable effects from its extension, which might be reflected again on the New York market. The price of gold was bid up a penny an ounce in London in order to secure the gold, and money and discounts immediately rose. The stock market there was also affected by dearer money, and some selling of securities in New York for that account was the result. There was some easing in the call loan rate later in the day.

New York exchange in Chicago recovered to 5 cents discount compared with 25 cents discount at the closing last week and 40 cents discount at last week's low level. Some relaxation for the time of the interior demand made upon New York was thus indicated. The decline of upward of $500,000,000 in the value of July agricultural exports caused by the heavy falling off in the cotton outgo, was a factor lacking assurance for the international exchange situation.

The small effect on the provisions item of the beef packing agitation was considered gratifying from the standpoint of the financial market. The day's gains were not fully maintained to the last and the closing was rather heavy.

Some of the low interest bearing bonds were offered down, apparently in sympathy with the lower price level at which the New York Central general 3½'s have settled with the dissolution of the underwriting syndicate. The general tone was irregular. Total sales, par value, $1,360,000. United States bonds all unchanged on call.

TRADING IN PIT EXTREMELY QUIET

STRENGTH OF MARKET AT LIVERPOOL MAIN INFLUENCE.—PRIMARY RECEIPTS INCREASE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Trading in the wheat pit today was extremely quiet, and prices fluctuated within a narrow range. During the first part of the session, sentiment was inclined to favor the bulls, the strength of the wheat market at Liverpool being the main influence. The advance at Liverpool was said to be due to crop damage reports from Russia. Commission houses were the principal bidders. Offerings, however, were small, would-be sellers being held in check by the excellent weather prevailing through the entire wheat territory. Later in the day the market eased off a trifle because of selling brought out by an increase of 2,189,000 bushels in the visible supply. The close was steady. September opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 72⅛c to 72¾c, sold up to 72⅝c and closed at 72½@⅝c.

Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 381,000 bushels. The amount on passage decreased 776,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 1,196,000 bushels compared with 1,138,000 bushels for the corresponding day one year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 722 cars against 592 cars last week 398 cars one year ago.

The same sort of speculative indifference that was manifested in the wheat market prevailed in the corn pit. Local receipts continued light, and this offset the effect of ideal weather conditions. The market was fairly steady all day. September opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at 49⅝c to 49¾c, sold off to 49⅛c and closed at 49¼c. Local receipts were 132 cars with 45 of contract grade.

The oats market was held steady by a little demand by cash interests and commission houses. Trading was quiet. September opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at 31⅛c to 31⅜c, sold off to 31⅛@¼c and closed at 31¼c. Local receipts were 212 cars.

Provisions were dull but firm. Owing to decreased receipts of live hogs, shorts were fair buyers, and this caused a substantial advance. At the close, September pork was up 25c at $17.10; lard was up 10c at $8.77; ribs were 7½c higher at $8.95.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat 493 cars; corn 154 cars; oats 334 cars; hogs 20,000 head.

ANARCHISM—A SOURCE OF PERIL—AND ITS REMEDY

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 13.—Secretary of the Navy Charles J. Bonaparte in an address at the Allegheny Chautauqua near Cumberland before a large gathering, chose as his subject, "Anarchism and its Remedy." Secretary Bonaparte said in part:

"Anarchism is the product of two conditions which prevail to a greater or less extent everywhere among the less enlightened classes of modern civilized society, namely the decay of religious faith and a measure of superficial, and therefore unsound, popular education.

"Anarchism will not be removed within a given time, or through a special measure or set of measures; perhaps it will not be wholly removed in any time or by any means. It will be for years, perhaps for generations, a source of some peril to our public men, a source of some annoyance and some anxiety, possibly at times, of some alarm to the American people. It is the product of causes which cannot be eradicated by legislation, however drastic, of causes which lie deep in the scheme of modern civilization, but because I have no panacea to recommend, it must not be supposed that I would have nothing done. I believe that anarchism has been already made less and can be made much less dangerous and harmful by being dealt with seriously and rationally. In other words I would see ourselves and our public servants in earnest and willing to be guided by their common sense and experience in seeking a remedy without regard to a little doctrinal prejudice and a little pseudo-humanitarian claptrap.

"In the first place the unlawful acts prompted by anarchism should be made crimes, insofar as they are not strictly speaking crimes already, and as crimes they should be visited with such penalties as are particularly distasteful to the criminals and therefore the most effective deterrants to crime. In dealing with a convicted anarchist two facts may well be remembered, the chances of his real reformation are so small that they may be safely neglected and we can appeal for practical purposes to but one motive on his part to discourage a repetition of his offense, namely, the fear of physical pain and death. To keep him for years in a penitentiary merely burdens the community with the support of an irreconcilable enemy, with the constant risk of his escape or pardon and the certainty that whenever he leaves he will be, if possible, a worse man than when he entered.

"On anarchists the death penalty should be unequivocally imposed by law and inflexibly executed whenever the prisoner has sought directly or indirectly to take life; for offenses of less gravity I advise a comprehensively brief, but very rigorous imprisonment, characterized by complete seclusion, deprivation of all comfort and denial of any form of distraction and which could be to any mind advantageously supplemented by a severe, but not public whipping; the lash, of all punishments most clearly shows the culprit that he suffers for what his fellow men hold odious and disgraceful and not merely for reasons of public policy.

"Any abridgment from fear of the anarchists of that freedom of speech and of the press guaranteed us by our state and federal legislations would be neither a wise nor a worthy policy; but these privileges in no wise shield councillors of crime nor instigators of disorder and rebellion. Any changes, however sweeping, in our laws and government may be urged and any arguments, however wild or grotesque, advanced to justify them, provide the method of change be orderly and lawful; but a published writing recommending the murder of the chief magistrate and the violent overthrow of the government is a seditious libel at common law, and there is no good reason why public utterances of spoken words of the same purport should not be made a like offense by the statute. It is already a crime to advise a felony or grave misdemeanor if the advice leads to the crime suggested and there is again no good reason why this should not become a substantiative offense without regard to its consequences, as is a criminal conspiracy.

"The final and most truly vital condition of success in ridding the country of anarchism in practice is that American public opinion should recognize the utter emptiness, the inherent folly of its theory and of all the kindred ready-made, furnished-while-you-wait schemes for the social regeneration of mankind. Civilized society as it exists today, if it be nothing more, is the outcome of all the strivings for justice and happiness of the human race during thousands of years. What monstrous presumption, what preposterous conceit for any man were he the wisest, the most learned, the most justly famed of his own age or of all ages to imagine that with but the dim flickering lights of his own dull, feeble mind, without the imperfect lessons of his own short, ill-spent life to guide his hand he could cast down and build up again this incredibly vast, this infinitely complex fabric and improve on its structure."

RED-HAIRED WOMEN.

Several young sky-pagraces were arrested and fined the other day for making certain caustic remarks about the flaming hair of two young women who passed them in a park. "I'll play it on the red," said one of the really wits. "Now look for the white horse," flashed another humorist. It is consoling to reflect that this brilliant sally cost the youths $25 each, with the humiliation incident to a jaunt to a police station in a patrol wagon.

Interest, however, does not center in the arrest of these young rowdies. It is only that the affair recalls the ancient libel against the woman with the red hair and the mysterious affinity that seems to exist between her and a white horse. Whoever instigated this calumny is probably still suffering for it, but his work lives on and will likely continue into the interminable reaches of time. Despite their vital influence in the world's achievements, the Titian-haired women have never received their just deserts. True, the pages of history deal gently with the fair sisterhood, and from a thousand galleries her imperious head gleams with its golden crown. The red headed women of history were faithful prototypes of the sunset blondes of today. They did things, and usually stern masculinity wilted at their feet.

We are told that the radiant Cleopatra, Joan d'Arc, Helen of Troy and Lady Macbeth and locks of gleaming yellow, while Sapho, the ardent; Poppaea, Heloise, Lady Godiva, Mary Stuart, Anne of Austria, Elizabeth of England, Catherine I. of Russia, Ninon de L'Enclos, Beatrice Cenci and the malevolent Lucretia Borgia had red hair—not golden, but just plain red. We are told also that Agnes Sorrel, Diane De Poitiers, Gabrielle d'Estrees and La Valliere had tresses that imprisoned sunshine. Paul Veronese, the master painter of color, never tired of making their portraits with aureolas of terra cotta. Paula De Toulous, we are told, was so splendidly beautiful that she had to have a bodyguard to keep her admirers at a distance, and red hair was her principal asset. Was not Herodias who danced before Herod vain of her red hair, and there is no doubt that Delilah used red hair in her witchery. In the realm of fiction we find Hermia, Viola, Beatrice and Portia with resplendent golden heads. Our authority points to Ayesha, daughter of Ahmed ben Mohommed, Kadim of Cordovia, as described by the Moorish historian: "She was beautiful like the rising sun, fine and slender, like a young aloe bending its head in the southern breezes, with hair like gold, red and burnished." Hennen gave his Magdalene red hair, and Titian made red-haired women the highest type of humanity.

Some one who has taken the trouble to find out, says that "a woman adorned with bright red tresses is brighter, more deceptive and more ambitious than a woman having other colored hair." Whatever truth there may be in this, the writer goes on to say: "It is true that red-haired women have a strange fascination for most men, and red-haired old maids are almost unknown. Red-haired men are almost equally in demand in the matrimonial market, for they are said to be the most devoted of husbands. Hence the reason of a girl's club in Dresden, the members of which are pledged to die old maids rather than marry any but young men with red hair."

OLD MAIDS IN FRANCE.

From the London Tribune.

Several of the leading Parisian newspapers are occupying themselves very much with the subject "Madame of Mademoiselle?"

"It has been suggested quite seriously," states a Parisian correspondent, "that women over 30 should be called 'Madame,' whether they are married or single. This is in strict accordance with the French idea that all women ought to be married long before they reach the age of 30.

It is not at all likely that any real change will take place with regard to the mode of addressing the softer sex, but the discussion in the newspapers has opened some interesting and amusing points. One writer—a famous journalist and an equally famous wit—points out that serious difficulties would surround the years, not to mention months, which go immediately before and immediately after the fatal 30. One could not very well say 'Mademoiselle—I think?' or 'Madame—I am afraid?' Politeness would demand a universal 'Mademoiselle,' for who would dare to take for granted that any woman married or single, had reached the 'settled down' age.

"Putting aside this rather absurd discussion, it is interesting," adds our correspondent, "to study the 'Madame' or 'Mademoiselle' question in ordinary life. All young French women over the age of 17 like to be addressed as 'Madame,' and a great many French women, of uncertain age—married women, be it understood—like to be addressed as 'Mademoiselle.' French women invariably deny this last, but in a great many of the smaller shops, bread shops, milk shops, and so on, a married woman sufficiently well on in years will often find herself addressed as 'Mademoiselle' as a specially attractive and ingratiating appellation.

"It is by no means easy to know in each individual case the right thing to do. I know elderly, unmarried French ladies who would be furious if you called them 'Mademoiselle,' and I know others of the same order who would take your name off their visiting list if you called them 'Madame.' Without doubt, 'Madame' is, on the whole, safest, because old maids are not the fashion in Paris. It is a strange land so far as the women are concerned; the jeune fille has, comparatively, but little fun. The vieille fille is regarded as a thing altogether superfluous. Is it, then, any wonder that the married women should be regarded as the only [illegible]?"
